Weather

Fine and rather cold. The maximum temperature yesterday was 68.5 and the minimum 33.3, the figures for the corresponding day last year being 61.3 and 52.7.

PARLIAMENT IMPEACHMENT VOTE ILLEGAL SAY CHINESE

Constitution Invoked To Deny Authority Of House

CASE OF MR. KOO

Foreign Minister Is Included Merely As Afterthought

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Nov. 28.—The so-called impeachments are the subject of considerable discussion and comment in both Chinese and foreign circles today. Impartial Chinese basing their arguments on the Constitution, contend that an impeachment requires the endorsement of the Second Chamber whereas a "chaban" is merely a demand for public investigation and should not be employed in the case of a Cabinet Minister. Thus they declare, the action of the House of Representatives yesterday was irregular.

It is semi-officially stated that the inclusion of Dr. Wellington Koo yesterday was merely an afterthought and was due to a report that President Li Yuan-hung intended to call on Dr. Koo to form a Ministry.

With regard to Dr. Koo's alleged participation in the Austrian Loan contract it is officially stated that the Waichiaopu came into the matter merely as follows:

The Tsaichenpu had asked the Waichiaopu whether it would be justified in accepting the evidence of the Italian Foreign Minister to which the Chinese Minister at Rome had certified, so that it (the Ministry of Finance) could proceed with a plan which would be submitted to the Cabinet. The evidence in question was contained in a despatch which the Waichiaopu had received from Rome. Dr. Koo replied that inasmuch as settlement of this long-outstanding question would reduce China's foreign indebtedness and improve her credit abroad the Tsaichenpu did not need telegraphic confirmation.

The Waichiaopu did not take further part in the matter.

FINE CHINESE BOY FOR ASSAULTING FOREIGN WOMAN

Domestic difficulties arising between a Chinese houseboy and his wife, an amah employed in another household, brought the former into the Mixed Court yesterday to answer to charges of assaulting Mrs. M. Gunn, 18 Yu Yuen Road, and beating her with his fists.

The complainant testified that the boy came to her house and tried to drag her amah away. The amah did not want to go and when witness interceded the boy grabbed her arm and struck her.

The defendant declared that he did not want his wife to work, that it was not necessary she should, and that the foreign lady had tried to prevent him from taking his wife home.

The amah testified that she did not wish to return to her husband because he continually ill-treated her, while his mother had threatened to sell her.

The Court fined the defendant $5 and ordered that his wife return to him, he being, however, required to sign a bond to treat her well and to keep the peace.

LOBINGIER HOLDS MIXED COURT JUDGMENT VALID

Allows Chinese Maritime Customs Claim Against American-Oriental Bank

The Chinese Maritime Customs recovered Tls. 69.14 and $965.55 from the American-Oriental Banking Corporation in an important judgment handed down by Judge Charles S. Lobingier in the United States Court for China late yesterday.

In deciding that the Customs was entitled to recover the amount of the judgment by garnishment, enforcing a judgment previously given in the International Mixed Court, Judge Lobingier held that "the judgment of a competent court of a sister nation is prima facie valid, and impeachable only on a clear showing." "A debtor," he held, "amenable to this court's jurisdiction, is subject to garnishment proceedings by the holder of such a judgment although the one against whom it is rendered is not so amenable."

Judge Lobingier also held that in this jurisdiction of the American Court a judgment may be rendered directly against a garnishee and that mere questions of procedure are concluded by such a judgment. White Cooper-Master and Harris appeared for the plaintiff, and Fleming, Davies and Bryan for the defendant. Judge Lobingier's full judgment was as follows:

COMPLETE JUDGMENT

This is a proceeding to enforce by way of garnishment in this court, a judgment for Taels 1,000 recovered against a Chinese defendant in the International Mixed Court at Shanghai. The petition attaches a copy of the pleading upon which the judgment was obtained and a certified copy of the judgment is produced in evidence. It also appears that notice by publication was given the judgment defendant who is claimed to have absconded.

The International Mixed Court at Shanghai is a recognised Chinese tribunal and we take it that its judgments are to be treated here as those of the courts of a sister nation, prima facie valid and impeachable only upon a clear and positive showing. (1) in this instance no attempt has been made to impeach the judgment. In fact the judgment defendant has not appeared at all though as already stated notice was given by publication.

The reason for pursuing the matter in this court is found in the averment that the present defendant, which is subject to this court's jurisdiction, is indebted to the judgment defendant and the purpose of this proceeding is to sequester and apply on said judgment the amount of the alleged indebtedness. In other words this is what is known as a garnishment proceeding, i.e., an action against a debtor's debtor. If the original judgment defendant were subject to this court's jurisdiction there would be no question regarding its propriety for such a proceeding is a very common one. The only unusual feature of the present situation is the fact that the judgment defendant is a Chinese

RUSSIA ASKS EQUAL STAND WITH POWERS AT LAUSANNE

Rumor As To Mosul Oil Monopoly Is Denied

U. S.---TURK PACT

Must Negotiate Treaty Separately, Says Washington

(Reuter's Service)

London, Nov. 28.—The outstanding feature yesterday at Lausanne was the presentation of a Russian Note to the President of the Conference, insisting on participation in all the discussions of the Conference on a footing of equality with the other Powers. There is no indication at present of the Allies being likely to alter their attitude as previously announced.

A rumor that Britain is negotiating with the Turks for the surrender of Mosul in exchange for the concession of an oil monopoly has been definitely denied.

A British delegate, in the course of an interview, intimated that in view of the United States's denunciation of the Tripartite Agreement of 1920 Britain regarded the agreement dead.

Ismet Pasha, in the course of a speech at a meeting of the Economic Commission, reiterated his intention of demanding reparation for damage done by the Greeks. He declared that the countries severed from the Ottoman Empire would have to bear a share of the Ottoman Debt.

FOR SEPARATE PACT

Washington, Nov. 28.—In conformity with advices from Paris it is stated that the negotiation of a separate Treaty with Turkey has been the purpose of the American Government in all its relations in connection with the Near Eastern situation.

The present Treaty between the two countries has long been regarded as worn out and, furthermore, since the United States would not be a signatory of the peace treaty now being negotiated, there is no other way for the American Government to subscribe to any of the agreements which may be reached at Lausanne.

Anglo-Russ Trade Gains Way Slowly

(Reuter's Service)

London, Nov. 28.—That Anglo-Russian trade is making slight headway was shown today by figures given in the House of Commons. British imports from Russia for 1921 were £2,694,000 and exports to Russia £3,391,000 as compared with £3,189,000 and £3,378,000 respectively for the first nine months of 1922

Giesel Knew Everything, Mack Declares On Stand In Liquor Larceny Case

Defendant Charges Employer With Inducing Him To Sign False Statement In French Mixed Court Case

Arthur Charles Mack, being tried before Judge Peter Grain and a jury in the British Supreme Court on charges of larceny of liquors, took the witness box for the first time as the defense opened yesterday and declared that Mr. Albert Giesel, head of Giesel and Co., who brings the charges, was thoroughly informed of all that went on and was aware moreover, that spurious liquors were being manufactured in the Giesel godown.

In the lower Court he reserved his testimony. He was cross-examined at great length yesterday by Mr. C. P. Wilkinson, the Crown Advocate, who appeared to prosecute, assisted by Mr. P. W. Goldring. Mr. Tycho Wing with Mr. J. O. Andersen defended.

The case, it is expected, will be concluded this morning and the verdict returned probably before noon.

Battustizzi, testifying as the last witness for the prosecution, said that when he took up his appointment with Giessel and Co. he saw the essences in the godown. He did not receive any orders from Giesel to make Martel and Hennessy brandy. Mack had suggested at first that it should be made outside the godown, but afterwards he changed his mind and decided to make it in the godown.

Cross-examined by Mr. Wing, witness stated that the letter head on which he wrote the agreement was supplied by Mack. He found at Giesel and Co. the same stuff, apparatus and other things as he found at Reids. Just the same sort of business was going on at Giesel's as Reids had carried on. He had made Sunny Brook whisky with Hastings spirit. He used to work out how much it would cost per case. He used to calculate it on pieces of paper, and he told Mack what proportion of materials would have to be used. He gave these slips of paper to Mack and therefore could not say whether Giesel had received or seen them. During the time he was engaged he only spoke to Giesel once or twice. He saw Giesel in the godown once or twice also. Anybody going into the laboratory could see these essences perfectly well.

The Judge: "Why did you sign that document?"—"Because Mack asked me to do so."

"Why? You did not receive the $1,000?"—"I received from Mack a check for $1,000. Mack asked me to go and see Blumenthal as he could not speak Italian."

"You did not sell any goods nor receive any money. Then why did you sign it?"—"Because Mack asked me to sign it."

This closed the case for the prosecution.

MACK TAKES STAND

Arthur Charles Mack stated that he had lived in Shanghai for practically the whole of his life and was 40 years old. Last year he went into the employ of Reids, Ltd., and it was there that he made the acquaintance of Battustizzi. At Reids there was a considerable business done in the way of manufacturing alcoholic liquors. Some time last year Reids, Ltd., went into liquidation after which he got into touch with Giesel, while the defendant was still in the employ of Reids. He introduced Giesel to Stone, who was looking for some German beer. When Reids came to an end the defendant was appointed acting receiver to liquidate the affairs of the company. He had a conversation with Giesel regarding the stock that Reids had ordered and could not take, the latter suggested that the only way to get rid of this stock was [illegible] to open a wine department at 62 Klangse Road. He also suggested that in order to get rid of Tls. 35,000 worth of

Noyes And Eddy Speakers At Tiffin By Americans

Speaking at the tiffin given in his honor yesterday by the American University Club and the American Chamber of Commerce at the Carleton, Mr. Frank B. Noyes, President of The Associated Press of America, expressed the hope that newspapers in China would receive more comprehensive reports of news events in America in the future and pledged himself to work towards that end.

Dr. G. Sherwood Eddy, International Secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association who is making a tour of China investigating labor conditions spoke on the relationship between capital and labor and the great necessity of establishing mutual understanding of common problems.

Mr. J. B. Powell, President of the American University club introduced Mr. J. Harold Dollar, President of the American Chamber of Commerce, who extended the greetings to the guests of honor.

Mr. Noyes, who was the first speaker, said that he had always entertained the highest respect for the Young Men's Christian Association both at home and had always helped whenever possible to further its work.

WELL DISPOSED TO "Y"

"However I am particularly well disposed toward the Y. M. C. A. today," Mr. Noyes continued, "because Dr. Eddy will make the speech of the occasion. Ever since my arrival in China I have spoken on the average of twice daily, and as a result I have nearly exhausted my language.

"I have come to China to study the news situation here and try if possible to remedy the defects in the dissemination of news from America."

Mr. Noyes then told of the manner in which the Associated Press gathered the news throughout the United States, the close relationship with Reuter's and of cordial relations which had always existed between the two great news agencies.

"The great difficulty with the present plan is that China receives press dispatches from the United States via London," Mr. Noyes continued. "Naturally, under the circumstances, it is exceedingly difficult to present a proper picture of news events in America. Both Sir Roderick Jones, head of Reuter's and Mr. W. Turner, Reuter's General Manager of the Far East agree with me that the situation is analogous to one in which British citizens in United States receive

SOVIET FLAG ON R.V.F. BOATS LYING IN RIVER

The Soviet flag has been raised on the two Russian Volunteer Fleet vessels which have been tied up in Shanghai for the past two years, and the Soviet flag has replaced the French flag that formerly flew from the Russian Volunteer vessel at Hongkong.

The Soviet flag raised over the two ships in port here is red with "U. S. S. R." in gold letters in the corner of the flag.

The two Russian ships here have been the subjects of considerable litigation in the International Mixed Court as well as disputes between various factions of Russians claiming ownership.

Mme. Isis Gazes Into Orbs And Enters Into Matrimony

BY LARRY LEHRBAS

A dimly lighted, heavily carpeted room in the Palace Hotel, the very air pregnant with hovering unseen ghosts.

Two people sit at a shrouded table in the center of the room a strange, unseeing expression on their faces—and yet their eyes do see, for they are gazing into a crystal ball on the table, a crystal ball which holds within its luminescence the secrets of the ages, the untold tale of the Sphinx, the unuttered, unknown, ghostly mysteries and secrets of the future, a future unknown to all except those few who have wandered thither and heard the strumming of golden harps with Sir Conan Doyle.

The crystal gazer, to whom these manifold mysteries of the past, present and future are as simple as mere arithmetic to Einstein, is Madame Isis, whose fame has already permeated to the utmost fringe of civilisation in Shanghai and whose mystic room has become the Mecca of ladies searching for lost husbands and lost dogs, flappers who would have a premature peep at their Sir Launcelot, bashful beaus who would hearken to the dream-voice of their beloveds to-be—and police.

MERELY A MAN

The other crystal gazer was merely her manager, Mr. William Francis Wallace.

The two gazed steadfastly into the mystic crystal ball for minute after minute, hungering for a sign from the unseen spirits that rule the destinies of Man. They needed help, earthly or ghostly, or any other kind, badly and chop-chop!

Slowly they raised their heads from the crystal ball and as their eyes rose above the level of the ball they gazed into each other's faces. And in each other's eyes they saw what the crystal had failed to show them.

THE RIDDLE RIDDLED

And then they smiled, and gazed into the crystal again. Transformed into a crystal of happiness by the love-light in their eyes they saw the secrets of all things unfolded before their ken. Just as plainly as the nose on your face were the unearthly letters formed: "Goest thou and see, Mr. H. D. Rodger."

A few minutes afterward Madame Isis and Mr. Wallace were telling their troubles to Mr. Rodger, who despite his apparent relationship to the supernatural hosts is merely a lawyer in his Shanghai reincarnation.

They told Mr. Rodger that Madame Isis, who has been foretelling the future to patrons at the Palace Hotel for ten days or so past, and giving satisfaction to everyone, according to her passionate press agent, Mr. Wallace, had been summoned to appear in the British Police Court tomorrow morning and answer charges made against her under a British law that conflicts with fortune-telling.

"I've travelled all over the world for sixteen years and this is the first time I've ever been so rudely treated by the authorities," Madame Isis informed Mr. Rodger.

"Can it be so?" Mr. Rodger replied in a shocked voice.

And then Mr. Rodger duly reinforced by the unseen spirits

KOREANS HERE PLAN KILLINGS, SAYS NICHI NICHI

Daily Meetings Held To Plan Assassination Of Japanese, Says Press

Korean revolutionaries in Shanghai are holding secret meetings at which plans are being laid and lots being drawn for the assassination of prominent Japanese authorities in Japan, according to an expose printed yesterday in the Shanghai Nichi Nichi, local Japanese newspaper.

The Nichi Nichi asserts it has received information that the Korean revolutionists are holding daily meetings and plan to send assassins to Japan when the Japanese Diet reconvenes. Several high Japanese have been marked for death by the Koreans, according to the newspaper, and a campaign of terror has been planned for the three Eastern Provinces at which Japanese are to be the victims.

RECEIVER NAMED FOR TONG'S PAPER

Mr. A. Krisel has been appointed receiver for the Shanghai Journal of Commerce, a Chinese daily newspaper registered in the United States Consulate-General, by Judge Charles S. Lobingier.

The Journal of Commerce, commenting on the appointment of the receiver in its issue yesterday says "as rumors are prevalent about the condition of our paper since our manager, Tong Tsih-ts, has not attended office for some time" they requested that a receiver be appointed.

Dr. Tong, about whom reference is made, is part owner and manager of the newspaper, and at present is held in custody by the Chinese authorities following an investigation into the death of Miss Zi Zang-tseng, a mailing clerk formerly employed in the newspaper office, who committed suicide two months ago.

WOMAN ANGLE IS FEATURE OF GOLDENBERG MURDER CASE

Sensational Development Expected Today In Police Hunt

INQUEST HELD

Evidence In Camera; Funeral, Halted By Officials, Is Today

It was learned late last night that as a result of investigations yesterday afternoon evidence was brought to light tending strongly to establish the theory that the murdered theater man met his death not later than midnight of the night before the body was found.

Sensational developments in the inquiry being conducted into the baffling circumstances surrounding the murder of Mr. Bernard Goldenberg, manager of the Victoria Theater, are expected to be made by police today. Detective Inspector Prosser and other members of Chief William Armstrong's headquarters staff are understood to have unearthed several highly important clues, one of which involves a mysterious woman in the case and may prove the key to the mystery.

Developments in the sensational murder mystery came thick and fast yesterday. While detectives continued working on every possible clue that would give an inkling as to the murderer or murderers of the theater manager, the inquest over his body was held at the Spanish Consulate-General and returned a verdict that Mr. Goldenberg came to his death by murder by some person or persons unknown.

The funeral, which was to have been held yesterday afternoon, was abruptly halted just before the time it was set for when police are said to have unearthed a theory that made it necessary to make another close inspection of the body by police and physicians. The funeral will be held at 4:15 o'clock this afternoon at the Baikal Road Cemetery. The procession will start from the Public Mortuary at 3 o'clock, and members of Sinim Lodge of the Masonic order will attend.

MYSTERIOUS WOMAN

The latest and most sensational theory evolved—that a woman may have been implicated in the murder—became known late yesterday when it was learned threats had been made against Mr. Goldenberg by a woman. It is also understood that a woman's presence near the scene of the crime had been verified by witnesses whose names have not been divulged.

Facts brought out at the inquest at the Spanish Consulate-General—which was conducted in secret because of the importance of some of the statements made by witnesses—are said to have brought the woman element prominently to the foreground, and caused the police to increase their efforts in that direction rather than probe the mysterious murder from a pure robbery-motive standpoint.

INQUEST IN CAMERA

The inquest at the Consulate at 126 Szechuen Road was conducted by Mr. N. Asil, Acting Consul-General for Spain, assisted by Spanish Assessors Juan Mencarini and J. Aquado. Following the morning session the scene of the inquiry was shifted to the Victoria Theater, and in the afternoon was resumed at the Consulate.

At the morning session the witnesses called were Mr. A. Ramos, head of the Ramos Amusement Company, of which Mr. Goldenberg was General Manager; Mr. Paul S. Crawley and Mr. A. Bergel, moving picture men with whom Mr. Goldenberg was associated, and who were the last to see him alive, and Detective Sergeants Schmidt and Bain of the Municipal Police.

Mr. Ramos in his testimony is understood to have reviewed the entire evening preceding the murder until he left Mr. Goldenberg at the theater about 11 o'clock, and the circumstances the next morning when he became suspicious at the manager's continued absence, called the police, and discovered Mr. Goldenberg lying on the floor of his room with his head crushed, a club on the floor beside him, the room in disarray and the light shrouded by a leg of a pajama trousers.

UNSOLVED ANGLE

Mr. Ramos is also understood to have repeated his story that the Indian watchman told him that Mr. Goldenberg had left the theater at 7 o'clock the morning after the murder is supposed to have occurred which has proved the most baffling incident of the crime. No other person saw Mr. Goldenberg alive after he went up the stairs of the theater to his apartment, and it was also discovered that Mr. Goldenberg's bed had not been slept in on Sunday night. If the watchman did see Mr. Goldenberg go out of the theater the next morning police are mystified as to how he spent the time between 11:30 o'clock on Sunday night and 7 o'clock the next morning, and are unable to account for the fact that Mr. Goldenberg was found fully dressed and with his overcoat—which he had carried on his arm when last seen alive by the foreign witnesses—was found on the floor near the body.

Mr. Paul Crowley is said to have also repeated his story as told in THE CHINA PRESS yesterday concerning the events of Sunday night when Mr. Goldenberg said 'goodnight' to him and went up stairs with announced intention of going to bed. Mr. Rangel's story was the same.

It was also learned yesterday that the club with which Mr. Goldenberg was killed was a rounded medium-weight pine stick, probably a portion of a fence and that the murderer had struck the dead man across the head with it several times after Mr. Goldenberg had stepped into the room.

The club was covered with bark and it is said that the fingerprints on it are indistinct. Detective Inspector Peck of the Finger Print Bureau took finger prints in the room and on the safe containing a large amount of the theater's money, and it is thought they may assist in solving the mystery.

Following the visit to the apartments of the dead man during the noon recess the inquest reopened yesterday afternoon and heard the evidence of the Indian watchman, the Chinese boy, and Dr. E. L. Marsh, the physician who was called and examined the body.

PROGRESS MADE

Several important angles of the case still remain unsolved and are providing the police with full scope for their detective talents, to determine how the murderer or murderers entered and escaped from the room; whether Mr. Goldenberg was killed as soon as he entered the room, after an argument with his murderers in the room, or the next morning after he mysteriously slipped into the theater without any one's knowledge; whether the motive was actually robbery or something else; and numerous less important points.

The police laconically report that 'satisfactory progress' is being made.

Mr. Goldenberg's aged mother, who with his wife and four children live at 11 Yates Road, is understood to have been told that her son died suddenly. It was feared that if she were told that he had been murdered it would prove a shock that would kill her.

Mme. Isis Gazes Into Orbs And Enters Into Matrimony

that floated about his office, mapped out a campaign to chase the hoodoo out of the picture.

Mr. Wallace dashed out and bought a plain gold band ring. Madame Isis galloped back to the hotel and exchanged her Egyptian (or Hindoo, or Patagonian or whatever they are) robes for a common, ordinary dress. And then they flivvered together to the residence of the Rev. George Fitch, who has often assisted two souls in agony to coming agonies.

Picking up Rev. Fitch, they jolted off to the American Consulate and interviewed Mr. J. B. Sawyer—and in three jerks of a lamb's tail Madame Isis—or Mrs. Rose Biscoe of London as she signed the marriage register—was Mrs. William Francis Wallace.

THE COMPLICATIONS

Mrs. Wallace was British, but loses her marriage to an American she lost her British citizenship, and the British Court will therefore have no authority to try her when her case is called tomorrow.

The recent American law dealing with alien wives of American citizens, decreed that foreign women marrying Americans did not become American—so Mrs. Wallace cannot be charged in the American Court.

Consequently she is a woman without a country and women—or men—without a country in Shanghai are tried for their sins and trespasses in the International Mixed Court, which is a Chinese court of law.

And in China, fortune-telling is not considered a crime. Fortune-telling, in fact, is one of the seven noble arts and what Chinese court would ever fine or imprison a fortune-teller merely because she held seances and played leap-frog and tiddly-winks with spirits and ghosts and things in another reincarnation, spirit-world or nebulous aerial hereafter or future?

"Honeymoon?" said Mr. Wallace. "No. I'ts all going to be a honeymoon. You see we've cared for each other a long time and had planned on being married on my birthday, December 23. This little incident of the British Court, however, changed the plans a wee bit and caused us to take advantage of an opportune time to get married. Did we get married just to cheat the righteous British Court of its due? Never! Certainly not!"

The newlyweds started off and another happy idea struck Madame Isis' press-agent husband.

"You know," he whispered confidentially, "Madame Isis foretold this. I said: 'We'll be married on my birthday.' And she said: Well, then or before then, dearie.'"

So there you are.

"The Only Girl"

BY DOMINO

"When I come to a show, I come to enjoy it and not to criticise. I like The Only Girl and I'm getting my money's worth." I heard a well known sportsman say this in the second interval last night, and from the laughter and applause that one heard frequently I should imagine that there were quite a number of people of the same opinion.

I liked The Only Girl just about as much as those three fellows did after they had six weeks married life with the vixens.

It isn't a good show. I remember seeing the Bandman Company in it, and they made some success of it because they had a couple of good players in the leading parts. Leyland Hodgson and Marjorie Manners were delightful. Both had good voices and both had the real musical comedy style. Last night the show suffered in contrast. The Far East Players should stick to straight stuff. Granted that MacCaskey has a powerful voice that gave some pleasure last night, and that Miss Barnicoat also played her part and sang well, but the other regulars were not in the picture.

I must mention a first appearance of Miss Dorothy Kelway—I fancy the surname is Kelvey—I believe she is very young and she undoubtedly has talent. She sings nicely, and has an excellent style. She should go far in the profession.

A very popular item in last night's program was that supplied by George Baldwin, a newcomer. What he had to do with the Only Girl is not clear, but with the aid of a piano and a good deal of comedy work he drew rounds of applause from the house. Another very pleasing feature—I liked it the best—was a charming violin solo by Bernard Nedell which was well accompanied by Miss Barnicoat.

But that is about all I can say for The Only Girl. There were bits here and there and we liked them.

Go along tonight and get your laugh at the foibles of married life and go in the spirit of the sportsman who said:

"When I come to a show, I come to enjoy it and not to criticise. I like The Only Girl and I'm getting my money's worth."

CHAUFFEUR HELD FOR INJURIES TO FOREIGN GIRLS

A Chinese chauffeur, named Dzung Ah foh, was brought up at the Mixed Court this morning, before Assessor King and Magistrate Loh, for negligently driving his motor lorry which caused bodily harm to two foreign children named Stella and Alda Ozorio.

The charge was that at about 8.50 yesterday morning in North Szechuen Road, while driving motor lorry No. 5318, did drive the said lorry in a reckless and negligent manner thereby causing bodily harm to both children.

The case was remanded for the Traffic Court on Thursday afternoon.

their news of Great Britain through an American agency.

TO AID DIRECT NEWS

"I am going to do my utmost to see that a modus vivendi can be arranged whereby American news comes direct from America to China.

"I think you realise that at present both the U. S. Legation at Peking and the Consul General here receive a certain 'wordage' coming from America by wireless, which, under existing arrangements, they are not free to release for publication.

"This 'wordage' could be increased from 200 to 300 words a day as it now is to 400 or 500 words containing all the elements of real news, and not the piffling generalities as at present.

"I am really criticising myself in saying piffling generalities since I have been told that the present wireless news is a condensation of the Associated Press report. I suggest that if Americans in China made proper representations to the State Department either through the legation, or the consulate, asking that this report be increased and released to the local press the State Department would consent."

Mr. Noyes concluded by saying that he would give news problems in China the most earnest consideration and hoped that a solution would be found in the near future.

DR. EDDY SPEAKS

Dr. Sherwood Eddy stated that he was on a trip around the world for the second time since the war.

"The three great problems which the world is facing are the international, race and industrial questions, which strike to the very root of the life of a nation," said Dr. Eddy.

"By international problems, I mean problems of nation warring against nation, or race against race and brother against brother. Civilisation must not be dragged down, we must utilise our entire strength and energy to build up again that fabric of civilisation which was destroyed by the war.

"The race problem is more acute than ever. In America we have the negro problem to deal with. Great Britain has India and other colonial possessions where the question of races is most acute. Furthermore as a result of the war, individual ideals and morals have suffered a decline which must not continue, but must be rebuilt and sustained as never before.

INDUSTRIAL PROBLEMS

"The problems of industrial life have been greatly increased since the war. Wherever I travel I find the same unrest among the laboring classes. In Japan, there were 300 strikes, when I passed through that country recently; India has learned to strike; in Egypt all the trams were idle because both conductors and motormen had 'walked out'; China, the stronghold of labor, is now subject to strikes of labor organisations and guilds, while in America there are 3,000 strikes yearly.

"What is the cause of the world wide unrest?

"According to the report submitted by the Federal Industrial Commission, composed of employers, employes, economists and financial experts, labor feels that it is not getting a square deal at the hands of capital, that under the present wage scale it is impossible to live a normal decent life, to raise children and educate them, and to save for the future.

"That owing to the present unrest and the paucity of employment the feeling of unrest is becoming more acute.

"That the laborer demands some share in the profits of the article he has helped to produce."

CONDITIONS HERE

Dr. Eddy then told of varying industrial conditions in China. For the most part he said that the condition of the laboring classes was similar to that of 150 years ago in England when machinery was beginning to supersede hand work. In some of the factories he visited, the employers had realised that the necessity of improving the condition of the workers was of paramount importance.

"One factory manager told me," Dr. Eddy continued, "that by reducing the working days a week from seven to six, thus allowing one day of rest, and by cutting down the working hours from twelve to ten, production had been increased, a fact which he could not believe at first."

Dr. Eddy then told of his recent visit to a match factory where there were 1,000 boys who worked from 4 a.m. to 8 p.m. seven days a week.

"After being inside the factory for less than half an hour my nostrils burned and my lungs ached from the fumes of the cheap chemicals used. I had to hold my handkerchief over my nose and beat a hasty retreat, yet these 1,000 boys had no handkerchiefs, and if they had, they could not have used them with both hands occupied. I learned further than more than 70 boys a day are sent to the hospital for recuscitation and treatment.

"In a weaving factory I found that some 1,500 boys were employed, whose ages varied from 9 to 15 years and were compelled to work 18 hours daily for seven days a week. In this factory the apprentices received no pay and only received their food for three years. After learning the trade, instead of being employed by the factory they were discharged and other apprentices taken on in their places. As a result the majority of the 'graduates' became rickshaw coolies. From statistics compiled by the municipal authorities I discovered that the life of a rickshaw coolie is approximately five years. It was not a brilliant future for any growing boy to look forward to."

URGES CO-OPERATION

In conclusion Dr. Eddy stated that the only possible way of solving the problems of the world was through the co-operation and mutual goodwill of every nation.

"It is therefore impossible to adopt a slogan 'Deutschland uber Alles' or 'My country right or wrong,' but the three great problems must be solved through international goodwill and co-operation."

Mr. Noyes will be the guest of honor at a tea reception to be given by the Sin Wen Pao Chinese daily, this afternoon. Tonight at 8 o'clock at the Great Eastern Hotel the Association of Chinese Newspapers will hold a dinner in his honor.

SHUN PAO ENTERTAINS

Mr. Sze Liang-zay and Mr. L Chen, Director and Editor-in-Chief of the Shun Pao were hosts to Mr. Frank B. Noyes at an informal Chinese dinner held last night at the Shun Pao building. Mr. Noyes first visited the Shun Pao plant. In the course of the dinner Mr. Sze by request gave a short talk on the history of the Shun Pao. He recalled its struggles and difficulties and the factors responsible for its success, the chief of which, Mr. Sze emphasised, was non-partisanship and the refusal of all subsidies from extraneous sources.

Mr. Noyes was in turn asked to tell something about the Washington Star, which he edits. The Washington Star, he said, was started in 1852 and although it was an evening paper with a readership limited to the residents of Washington, it has found its way as a respected friend into the homes and families of the Washington population by reason of its unfailing rigidity in fighting shy of all questionable methods of multiplying the circulation with rapidity. The Star thought that if it always maintained a self-respecting attitude by presenting the news faithfully and introducing conscientiously the announcements of the business men, it would command the respect of its readers, and that this respect would be shared by the advertisers. The financial success of the Star has amply justified its faith in this conservative policy, he said.

Philatelic Society Meeting Is Today

The Shanghai Philatelic Society will meet at 5:30 p.m. today, in the Hall of the Royal Asiatic Society, Museum Road.

A lecture on the stamps of France will be given by the Chairman Mr. J. Em. Lemiere, who has promised to exhibit his valuable collection of the stamps of this country.

The Society was formed on the 18th December, 1912, by the following gentlemen: Messrs. F. J. Lamouroux, F. Large, H. Matzen R. E. Scatchard, R. V Dent, T. H. Hutchison, G. J. W. Morgan and W. A. Reed. It has continued to progress since that date and has now an active membership of 47.

Visitors to the meetings are welcome and the Society would like every eligible collector in Shanghai to join and attend the meetings. Both ladies and gentlemen are eligible for membership. Applications should be made to the Hon. Secretary: Mr. Wm. C. Divers, 35 Darroch Road. The exchange Secretary will be glad to hear from members who wish to receive the monthly stamp packets. Blank books are supplied for those who wish to sell the duplicates, the commission for selling is five percent.

brandy, etc., the best thing to do would be for Giesel to buy the plant from Reids which the Chinese-American Bank held. Giesel addressed a letter to the bank, and Giesel eventually took over the plant and machinery and corks, but not the essences or fluids of any kind. Reids were indebted for a considerable amount to the Mercantile Bank and the bank had a lien on the plant and machinery and they took possession of these. When Giesel purchased them they stood in the Chaoufoong Road godown just where they were. The bank retained the top floor while Giesel had the rest of the godown. When he joined Giesel he practically guaranteed the expenses. He told him that there was a lot of vermouth in the hands of the Chinese-American Bank which it seized from Reids while it was being made ready to be shipped to Mexico. These cases were in the hands of the United States Court Marshal, and when they were taken over there was a stipulation that the vermouth would have to be relabelled before it was sold. A letter was sent to the bank signed by Giesel agreeing to relabelling all of them at $2.00 a case. The relabelling was really started. It was Marie Noyon vermouth bearing the Noilly Prat label. Since the arrangement was concluded between Giesel and the bank to relabel the vermouth at the cost of two dollars per case Giesel decided to sell his own vermouth, for which he paid a dollar per case and sell it as Marie Noyon. The vermouth that was taken over from the Marshal of the United States Court, it was decided to sell through an Italian.

SAYS INFORMED GIESEL

"How can you sell this vermouth without any delivery order?"—"We sold 30 cases. After we sold 30 cases the market shroff told me that the agents of Hennessy had wind of it, and I ordered that it should be removed to his house. I moved the remainder of the Noilly Prat vermouth on Sunday morning without a delivery order. I had an understanding with Giesel and he said that no delivery order would be issued by him. Before I removed this vermouth I had three or four consultations with Giesel, and he was also informed immediately after the vermouth was removed."

"Was there any objection on behalf of the staff of the godown when this vermouth was removed without a delivery order?"—"There was only one man, Lee, and I told him that I was responsible until the following morning, when he could inquire from the office."

"Had you any intention when removing that vermouth of stealing it?"—"None whatever."

"Did you in fact make any profit for yourself by doing so?"—"No."

"When you got into touch with Blumenthal did he say that he would take some vermouth bearing wrong labels?"—"He saw the vermouth and wanted to purchase it if I made some Martel brandy. I saw Giesel. Blumenthal wanted Hennessy labels."

"Did you recommend Blumenthal?"—"Yes. He is an expert in the line of stretching whisky, brandy and liquors."

DECLARES GIESEL KNEW

"There was going to be this brandy made and Blumenthal wanted Hennessy's labels, capsules, etc. Did you say that to Giesel?"—"Giesel said he did not want the firm implicated in any way. He asked me what I would like to suggest and I said that I had a conversation with Blumenthal and that he was willing to sign all the documents and be responsible for them. The spirits of wine, sugar and essences were to be supplied by Giesel. We worked out the cost of the barrel and everything. Everything had to be put before Giesel."

"Where had the Hennessy labels come from?"—"They had to be printed locally. I got them printed."

"What about the capsules?"—"The blank capsules were there, and we had to make the special dye. The stamp was made by Battustizzi and myself."

"How long did that work take to carry on?"—"Since the first arrangements with Blumenthal it took us about a fortnight. The hardest part was to get the dye and the stamps."

"And all that went on in the laboratory?"—"Yes."

"Was the making of that completed ever?"—"No."

"Did you hear anything when the work was in progress?"—"Negotiations were carried out at Blumenthal's and Battustizzi's residence. Battustizzi was frightened to proceed. This was two or three days before we demanded money from Blumenthal. We found that something suspicious was going on. When we felt suspicious we removed the stuff to Yochow Road. We had to camouflage it and had to put it in beer cases. These beer cases belonged to the firm, and the contents of the beer cases were Giesel's. We were afraid of a raid any moment. I had no intention of selling it, and I had not made a cent out of it. The cases were removed to Lee's house."

"There was a whole lot of good and genuine wine and spirit in Giesel's godown?"—"Yes."

Defendant stated that the check for a thousand dollars that he received from Blumenthal which was made payable to him was cashed. Battustizzi took a hundred dollars to pay for grappa. The remaining $900 was still with the defendant and would be returned when he received a proper receipt from Giesel.

"You are charged as well with taking whisky. It is said that you stole ten barrels of whisky?"—"The ten barrels that I purchased from a Chinese and sold to Giesel is on the original receipt."

"You are now accused of removing ten barrels of whisky from the godown?"—"It is not correct. He did not possess ten barrels of whisky on that date."

"You removed certain barrels of whisky to your mother's house?"—"They are my own. I have still more barrels in the godown."

"What was in these barrels?"—"Blending materials for spurious whisky. Giesel possesses no materials to make whisky."

"I think you had a certain amount of conversation with Giesel on the subject?"—"Yes, for a whole week."

REPUDIATES STATEMENT

"You went up to see Dr. Fischer, who was representing Giesel in the French Court, and signed a document?"—"Yes. Every word there in that document was dictated by Giesel. It was an untrue statement."

"What right have you to make that statement?"—"On September 18, shortly after Giesel was released from the French jail, he telephoned to me and said he would like to see me. He called on me at 6:30 p.m. and related to me his unpleasant experiences in the cell and asked me to help him out of this, as the French Court was hard on the Germans. Up till now there has been no formal letter written dismissing me. He suggested that I should give evidence. He told me that he had a chat with his lawyer. On the 19th he again called and asked me to interview his lawyer in the evening and at the same time arranged with Battustizzi to attend also. Then he asked me to pay him the $1,000. He said that should Dr. Fischer propose anything detrimental I should not be frightened as he would see me through."

"At that time the only charge was that of falsifying trade marks?"—"Yes."

"Was it known who was the immediate cause of all this trouble that came about?"—"Blumenthal"

In cross-examination by the Crown Advocate, defendant stated that he did 85 percent of the purchasing for Giesel and Co. The reason why credit notes were not put in for such things as grappa and others was that it was arranged that all these things would be settled after the deed, as Giesel did not want to implicate himself.

"What were you to get for the risk?"—"The arrangement was a salary of $400.00 and 15 percent."

"If you made this arrangement with Giesel was it not advisable to put it on paper?"—"He was no wise for me."

TO "FAKE" ON DEMAND

"When did you enter into arrangement with Giesel that you should make this faked stuff?"—"When there was a demand for it. When there was a demand for wine I would put the proposition before him."

"If this was your arrangement with Giesel why did you make this declaration?"—"He told me as a gentleman that he would not do anything detrimental. It took him one week to get a declaration from me."

"This swindle was arranged before the receipt was given from the godown of Mackenzie to the Chaoufoong Road godown?"—"Yes."

"The Marshal of the American Court did not know what vermouth it was?"—"Yes. The Chinese-American Bank knew as it concerned them."

"How did the bank know?"—"Because they were interested. Reids, Ltd. owned them (1,$11,000."

"Why were there no delivery order?"—"Because they were faked stuff. We had instructions to this effect from the bank."

"Could you not have delivery orders from Giesel?"—"He would not sign any delivery order."

"What was the total profit that was going to be made on these 22,000 cases?"—"The net profit was five dollars per case."

"I do you know what Giesel and Co. had to get for selling the stuff?"—"Ten percent."

"Is it possible that for ten percent Giesel would get into that swindle?"—"You forget that Giesel purchased Noilly Prat vermouth at a dollar and sold it at five dollars."

"They began to go out before a fortnight?"—"Yes, he did not sell the stuff but substitute it."

"Was it worth while for Giesel and Co. to enter into this rather complicated swindle with you and Battustizzi?"—"Yes, the profit was $1,078."

"When was this swindle arranged?"—"As the demand arose."

"There must have been some general swindle arranged. Did you ever make a general proposition to Giesel?"—"That is the reason why we stretched ten barrels of brandy."

"Is not stretching brandy a recognised way?"—"Not the way we stretched it. It can be done decently." (Laughter).

The Judge: "It was overstretched?"—"Considerably."

"TO SHIELD GIESEL"

Regarding the charges in the French Mixed Court against Giesel, the defendant said he made the declarations to shield Giesel. Defendant himself was afraid that he would get into trouble, and another consideration was that he wanted to retain his position with Giesel and Co.

"It was not necessary to say that you sent ten barrels of whisky to your mother?"—"Giesel told me that he had to clear himself before his partners. The ten barrels taken to my mother's house were mine."

ENVOY WARREN MAY BE CHOSEN AS U. S. SENATOR

Name Of Japan Ambassador Mentioned To Succeed Senatory Newberry

(China Press Service)

Detroit, Nov. 27—Mr. Charles Beecher Warren, the American Ambassador to Japan, is being talked of as the possible successor to Senator Newberry of Michigan, who resigned as a result of the recent election in which his colleague, Senator Townsend, was defeated.

Ambassador Warren is a native of Michigan and eligible for office from Michigan, and before his appointment to Japan by President Harding, a close personal friend, was prominent in Michigan Republican politics.

Other names mentioned as possible successors to Senator Newberry by appointment by Governor Grosbeck are Representative Kelley of Lansing, Mayor Couzens of Detroit, and Mr. Herbert Baker, who fought Senator Townsend on the Newberry issue in the primaries.

Woman Strangled To Death In Cotton Mill

A Chinese woman employed in a cotton mill on Gordon Road was choked to death yesterday when her scarf caught in mill machinery and dragged her into the machinery.

The scarf about her neck was caught in the machinery and twisted and tightened about her neck until she dropped dead from strangulation. Efforts to revive her were unsuccessful.

AUSTRIAN SHIPS QUESTION HOLDS UP THE TARIFF

Seventeen Countries Approve It But Italy Asks Quid Pro Quo

(China Press Service)

Peking, Nov. 27.—According to a report, seventeen countries have communicated through their diplomatic representatives at Peking to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs their approval of the new Customs tariff.

It is understood that the Japanese and Swedish Governments have promised to give a reply not later than the end of this month. The Italian Government, however, holds out for the acceptance by China of its proposal to refer to arbitration the controversy pending between Italy and China, regarding the status of the ex-Austrian vessels confiscated by China during the war, as a condition for its approval of the new tariff.

The Ministry of Foreign Affairs has replied to the Italian Legation.

GERMAN LLOYD LINER CARRIES 50 MILLIONAIRES

But In Marks, Mind You; Letters From Germany Bear Twenty-Mark Stamps

Letters from Germany arriving in Shanghai now are bearing 20-mark stamps, which under normal exchange conditions would be approximately Mex. $8.00.

Postal cards from Germany to Shanghai cost 12 marks postage.

Mail bearing such postage has just been received in Shanghai bringing the information that the first North German Lloyd passenger and mail vessel, the Weser, will arrive early in January with 56 cabin passengers, who have paid a half million marks for their passage and expenses, and wearing suits of clothes that cost 10,000 marks.

The marks-millionaires are believed to be German commercial travelers and businessmen although Melchers and Company, Shanghai agents for the line, have not received copies of the ship's bookings.

Lobingier Holds Mixed Court Judgment Valid

and therefore not amenable to the jurisdiction of this court.

After a somewhat prolonged consideration of the subject however, we have reached the conclusion that this feature does not really alter the situation so far as the present proceeding is concerned. For the alleged debtor, which is subject to the court's jurisdiction, has answered admitting the amount of the indebtedness and consenting to the relief sought and since this is one of the jurisdictions where a judgment against a garnishee may be rendered directly, (2) independently of the principal action, we are not called upon to exercise any jurisdiction whatever as regards the Chinese judgment defendant.

It is true that the indebtedness in question accrues to him; but no one questions the fact of the indebtedness nor its amount and the only action to which the judgment defendant could object is the application of the indebtedness upon the judgment. That objection however has been foreclosed by the rendition of the judgment itself which necessarily subjects the judgment defendant's property to its own satisfaction. Defendant, indeed, could take steps to impeach the judgment in this court, as for example on the ground of fraud, and to provide the opportunity for that procedure plaintiff was required to give notice to the judgment defendant. But no such showing has been made and the present defendant having consented to the application of the indebtedness it seems entirely regular to grant the relief sought.

Had the original action been instituted in this court there might have been some question as to the capacity of the plaintiff to sue. In other words it might have been questioned whether the action should not have been brought in the name of the Chinese Government rather than of a branch of its administration. That however is a question of procedure which appears to be concluded by the judgment itself. (3).

It is therefore considered and adjudged that plaintiff have and recover from the present defendant, the American-Oriental Banking Corporation the sum of Taels Sixty-nine and Fourteen one-hundredths (Tls. 69.14) and Mexican Dollars Nine hundred Sixty-five and fifty-five one-hundredths (Mex. $965.55) which amount shall be paid into court and applied upon the said judgment rendered by the International Mixed Court at Shanghai. There will be no award of costs against the present defendant.

By the Court,
CHARLES S. LOBINGIER,
Judge.

B.A.T. EMPLOYES IN POOTUNG ARE BACK AT WORK

A majority of the striking employes of the British-American Tobacco Company and China-Japan Cotton Mill factories in Pootung have returned to work and the labor situation across the river has returned to practically normal.

The employes of the two companies have been on strike for over three weeks, during which time over 5,000 workers have been out of work, and several riots have ensued. Several were injured and several arrested as a result of the riots.

The strike in Pootung not only affected the B. A. T. but the Nikko Mill. The employes of the Nikko Cotton Mills have been on strike for over three weeks because of the closing up of their union headquarters by the Chinese Authorities, and the B.A.T. workers followed suit to show their sympathy. On Saturday before last, the B. A. T. issued an ultimatum to the effect that they would close their doors to those who would not return on November 15 and as a result a large number returned. Those who have not returned were replaced.

Various concessions were granted by the B.A.T. to their returned employes, among them an increase of salaries and a ration of rice to everyone of the employes

Lumber Yard Coolies Meet To Form Union

Lumber yard coolies employed in about 100 Shanghai lumber yards held a meeting last night at which they discussed the formation of a union to be known as the Lumber Companies' Godown Coolies Association.

Coolie foremen employed at the China Import and Export Company, Kui Kyi Lumber Company, and Yuen Zung Lumber Company are taking the leading part in the formation of the union.

New Jazz Artists Arriving Today For Hotel Parisien Band

Local jazz artists from various of the city's syncopation crews are turning out today to extend a greeting at the jetty to three musicians who arrive by the steamer Nile to join George Warn's band, which will shortly be making feet restless at the new Hotel Parisien.

George, who will be remembered at one of the popular performers in the old Cafe Parisien orchestra, has been selecting his artists with care in various cities in the States. The three arriving today are Eddie Harmon, pianist: Dick Adamson, saxophone, and Roy Shapr, banjo. They hail from San Francisco and will be followed in about two weeks by other musicians coming out via Seattle.

The new Hotel Parisien, it is expected, will be opened about December 15.

"—It was the custom of the early Virginia planters to thrust a pole through the hogshead of tobacco and, tightly packed, thus trundle it to the market."
—Notes of a Planter.

Rolling Tobacco to Market in Old Virginia

It is a far cry from the rolling hogsheads to the modern railroads and steamships which today carry Virgina tobacco into the markets of the world. And science has helped in other ways in the handling of Virginia tobacco.

But science cannot improve the golden sunshine and the rich soil of old Virginia. They give an appetizing freshness and "lively" flavour which can be found in no other tobacco.

TWO MEN HAVE RACE TOMORROW

Annual St. Andrew's Day Event Comes At Tiffin Time

MANY ENTRIES

Forty Ponies Eligible For Jardine's Championship

Tomorrow Shanghai Scotsmen celebrate the anniversary of their patron saint, St. Andrew, in common with all men from yont the Tweed the world over. Much usquebaugh will be quaffed and many tons of haggis consumed, "Bobbie" Burns will be quoted and mis-quoted (according to the time of day at which song is broken into), the welkin will resound with the martial music of the bagpipes, and the Sassenach will frequently be reminded of his proper place in the British Empire.

In Shanghai, one of the features of the official program for the day will be a tiffin-time race confined to members of the staff of the "Princely" House, the "Muckle Hoose," E-wo, or Jardine's (as it is sometimes, but not often, known). This event will take place at the Shanghai Racecourse and all the indications are that it will provide a most interesting hour's entertainment.

Forty ponies have been entered and it is expected that about a score of these will face the starter. It says a great deal for the sporting instincts of the hong that so many riders can be found to go out and included in the list, of course, are several of the Settlement's premier riders such as the taipan himself, Mr John Johnstone, Mr. Heard, Mr. A. Norman Dallas, and Mr. W. A Dalgarno.

The following are the entries with the probable jockeys:

Fay and Seth, Christmas Sale (late Mikasa), A. J. P. Heard.

J. L. de Zutter, Florina, A. J. P. Heard.

J. L. de Zutter, Kashima, A. J. P. Heard.

Springfield; Clerk in charge of the Scales, Mr. David Brand; Handicapper, Mr. W. R. Lemarchand; Timekeeper, Mr. C. W. Beawick; In charge of the Telegraph, Mr. Austin.

The handicap weights have not yet been announced but they are certain to provide for a close finish. Last year Mr. Dalgarno brought home an old favorite in Djemnah to victory with Mr. Zellensky (now in Hongkong) second on Zaandam, and Mr. Elliot on Bachelor Tax in third place. There has been no leakage of the official tip for this year so that we cannot help readers who are anxious on a private flutter on the race.

HOCKEY GAINING IN POPULARITY AS SPORT HERE

S.H.C. Hopes To Have Three Teams In Field Saturday

The Shanghai Hockey club is in hopes of having three teams in the field next Saturday, although as yet no definite arrangements have been made for games. Hockey is getting a firm foothold in Shanghai, and is bound to grow in popularity, as it is a game that is ideally suited to winter conditions in Shanghai.

Last Saturday's games between the two Shanghai Hockey club teams and the Club Lusitano and Endeavorers brought out some very fine play, particularly the match between the S. H. C. "A" team and the Club Lusitano. In this game the Club Lusitano was handicapped by the absence of some strong men while the S.H.C. had an exceptionally strong team in the field.

The S.H.C. members were highly pleased to see Beaumont in action again, and the manner in which he scored one of the goals showed that he had lost none of his old cleverness. Rogerson and M. B. Brown are new players and both did very fine work in Saturday's game.

Team work was not as pronounced in Saturday's game as it is bound to be later on, when the members of the team become better acquainted with each other's style of play. At present there is plenty of fine individual work, such, for instance, as was provided by Messrs. Harvie and Faers in Saturday's game, and as soon as the team gets to working together more as a unit it will take some hard work on the part of the opposition to keep them from piling up points.

The Portuguese club has some mighty fine talent, particularly in Collaco at right back. He is a finished player and one whom it is a real pleasure to watch. The Club Lusitano's left back and halves played well, although the forwards were not quite up to the mark of which they are capable, perhaps because some of their good forwards were not in the line-up, which led to "pressing" on their part in the hope of making up the deficiency.

Reports on the S.H.C. "B" game with the Endeavorers were not very complete, although it is said that Richardson and Bertenshaw played exceptionally good hockey. The polo field, unfortunately, is a bit rough for this game.

Miss Bourgeois Nearly Wins First Paper'Unt At Tientsin; Benbow Rowe Is Third In

To the first "Tally-ho" of the season twelve huntsmen went away to an eight mile run a week ago Sunday afternoon, when the Tientsin Paper Hunt Club held its first hunt of the season, says The North China Star.

The Master, Mr. C. M. Watson, sent the field off shortly after 3 o'clock from a point on the west side of the Arsenal Road, opposite the Lone House. The scent led away down past the Arsenal, far into the fine country to the North West of the Arsenal. The hunt was laid by the Master and was unanimously declared to be good going all the way, with plenty of fair and sporting jumps, flat stretches and well planned checks.

FIRST JUMP DIFFICULT

The first jump presented the most difficulties of the run, due mainly to the freshness of ponies and the apparent hazards of the leap. No fewer than seven ponies refused, once, twice and several times, before they took it. J. E. S. Jones, on Coy, was thrown, but sustained no injury.

The finishing flags were placed across the road from the start, a couple of hundred yards behind the Lone House. The large gathering of Hunt enthusiasts both foreign and Chinese waited for about 40 minutes at the flags and were rewarded by a sterling and exciting finish for their patience.

When the hunt appeared from the village well on the horizon, north west of the Lone House a brown pony, which proved to be Miss Bourgeois' Mount. The Gambler, drew away from the pack and had a lead of about a quarter of a mile. Unfortunately she ran into a false line and before realising it and recovering, found herself many lengths behind coming into the last straight away.

WHIP TO MISS BOURGEOIS

As the field of about eight ponies came into the home stretch it was seen that the leaders were Benbow Rowe, A. E. Jones and Miss Bourgeois, with the latter's pony almost done from the extra effort to catch up. Half way to the flags, Benbow Rowe, who might have won the hunt, rode in close to Miss Bourgeois and sportingly gave her his whip. Her pony, which was about to fall out of the race, picked up under the whip, and in a pluckily ridden finish, Miss Bourgeois was beaten only by a short head at the flags, by A. E. Jones, with Benbow Rowe third. The rest of the field was well up behind in a prettily bunched finish.

As all of the first six were under the stipulated 161 pounds, there was no heavy weightprize.

THE CARD

The judges, Messrs. Eckford, Bidwell and D. A. E. Bell, picked the first six past the line as follows:

Mr. A. E. Jones, on Polo
Miss Bourgeois on The Gambler
Mr. Benbow Rowe on Tatcho
Mr. J. F. Cooke on Grey Dawn
Mr. A. H. G. Stewart on Cooma
Mr. C. C. Todd on Lafren

The other starters were:

F. L. Roberts, on Amber, J. E. S. Jones on Coy, E. D. Nash on St. Peter, A. Burgess on griffin, W. M. Black on MacGowan's pony, and P. A. on Sanddune.

MICHIGAN IS VICTOR; IOWA, DARTMOUTH WIN

Wisconsin And Chicago Play Tie Game; Brown Defeat Surprise

(By the United Press)

New York, November 25.—While Harvard was beating Yale at New Haven and the Army was triumphing over its ancient rival, the Navy, at Philadelphia, Jackie Cannell's Dartmouth eleven was staging the surprise party of the year at Providence, R. I. Here the Green beat Brown University by a score of 7-0 and thus Dartmouth leaps in the standing of Eastern elevens. Brown had beaten Harvard, 6-0, a week ago.

In the Middle West the University of Michigan defeated the University of Minnesota by a score of 16-7 while the University of Wisconsin and the University of Chicago played four gruelling periods to a no-score tie.

Iowa experienced little difficulty with Northwestern, winning 37-3

CRICKET CLUB WILL HONOR INTERPORTERS

Winners At Hongkong To Be Entertained Saturday Night

The Shanghai Cricket Club will give a dinner at the Shanghai Club next Saturday night at 8 o'clock in honor of the Interport team who brought back all the flags which they battled for. All members of the Club are invited to attend and a circular has been sent them to that effect. The Honorary Secretary, Mr. C. D. Field, Messrs. Arnhold Bros. 6 Kiukiang Road, requests that those who wish to attend shall send in their names to him before noon tomorrow.

A capital program has been arranged and the evening promises to be a memorable one. Mr. H. W. Potter, the S.C.C. president, will preside over the company.

No invitation cards will be sent out except to members of the Interport team.

American School Eleven And Civilians To Play Rugby Game Tomorrow

There will be an American Rugby football game tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock between the Shanghai American school eleven and the Shanghai civilians. The game will be played on the grounds of the Shanghai Cricket club.

The civilians have been practicing every night at the drill hall in preparation for this game, which from all indications will be the only American Rugby game here this season, aside from the inter-school games that have been played by the boys of the American school.

While the civilians have not shown as much interest in the great American college game as in former years, there has been a reasonably good turn-out for practice, and it is hoped to give the school boys a run for their money. The latter have one of the best teams ever turned out by the local institution, and are making great plans to wipe up the earth with the civilians this year, in revenge for some past defeats they have suffered.

For the civilians Irle, "Mal" Maloney, Jack Smith and Neale will play in the back field, and this quartette ought to make a lot of trouble for the school boys line. Maloney was one of the greatest ground gainers that Harvard ever had and Jack Smith, when he captained the Yale team, was unbeatable. Cal Hirsh will be at center for the civilians. The right side of the civilians' line will consist of one half of Hirsh, and Griffith, Cardwell and Whiteman, and on the other side will be the other half of Hirsh, and Seifert, Peyran and Reaoman, with Chen in reserve.

This combination contains both beef and speed, and will make the school boys hustle. There will no admission, and all are invited to attend. Dinny Doyle will referee Harry Kingman will be head linesman.

JOHN WADE MAKES HIT AT HONGKONG

Gameness And Playing Ability Of Shanghai Star Gets Crowd

LOSES HARD GAME

Forces Ng Sze-Kwong, Colony Champion, To Five Sets

John Wade, the Shanghai tennis star who went to Hongkong with the interport team recently, created a very favorable impression in the South, judging by newspaper accounts. This despite the fact that he was beaten in the singles by Ng Sze-kwong, the Colony champion, in a match that was pronounced the best seen in Hongkong for some time. Ng had to extend himself to the limit to win.

John, particularly impressed the Southern sharps by the manner in which he clung to his opponent after apparently being out of the running. Mechanically he was the better player of the two, but Ng used superior court strategy by means of which he worked the Shanghai man out of position. With reference to Wade's game the South China Morning Post said:

"Wade is one of the best players Shanghai has sent down here for some years. Very active on the court, he has a variety of excellent scoring strokes, colleys with fine precision and does some very effective work near the net. He played a very aggressive game throughout and when appearing entirely beaten recovered marvellously. He was frequently advancing to the net and while sometimes beaten by some hard drives, scored many more points than he lost by just touching the ball over the net with Ng on the

Kiangsu Assembly Protests Peking Government Action Ordering Fu Siao-En's Arrest

In the matter of China Merchants' Steam Navigation Company members of the Kiangsu Provincial Assembly sent on Nov. 21 a telegram to the President and Cabinet which reads as follows:

"A company directed and operated by merchants should receive due protection from the government according to law, but the government has no right to interfere with its management as it pleases. After reading the mandate of the 14th instant ordering the arrest of Fu Chung Yao (i.e. Fu Siao En), a Director of the China Merchants Steam Navigation Company, and his handing over to a Court of Law for trial, and the mandate of the 15th ordering that special commissioners be sent to investigate into the case, it is hard to understand why the President and the Premier are glad to issue such mandates contrary to law at the whims of Kao En Hung, the Minister of Communications.

"Since the publication by the Republican government of the law governing companies, the China Merchants Steam Navigation Company has reorganised itself according to such law and has become a company directed and operated purely by merchants.

"It does not concern us primarily here whether Fu Chung Yao is guilty or whether those who prosecuted him acted in accordance with the law, or had conclusive evidences thereof, but there must be a statement showing what he is guilty of. If, as it is stated in the mandate, he is guilty of instigating the Railway Strike and of financing Hsu Zu Tseng, it is his personal act and has nothing to do with the management of the China Merchants Steam Navigation Company though Fu happens to be a Director of the company. Further, if Fu is guilty of usurping the management of the company, then it is up to the shareholders and Directors of that company to see to the rectification thereof according to its Articles of Association and the Ministry of Communications should not interfere with a thing which is beyond its scope of authority. This ought to be clear. But these were purposely dealt with as one case and mandate was issued to interfere with the company. This is what the people fail to understand.

"According to the statement of the Ministry of Communications, it was brought out that the Ministry has the right to control all enterprises connected with communications in the country. The China Merchants Company is the only great shipping company of the Republic. Since there are shareholders charging the Directors of the company, the Ministry must extend its hand of protection and so the case must be investigated. The Ministry bases its actions on the applications submitted in the third year of the reign of Emperor Shien-tung. This is more strange than ever. We wish to ask whether Kao En Hung is the Minister of Communications in the Republic of China, or an official in charge of communications of the country under an Emperor. We wish to know whether the China Merchants' Company is a company ruled by its Directors, or a company ruled by government-appointed superintendents.

"The changing of the China Merchants' Company from being a government superintended company to a purely merchant-running firm is exactly similar to the changing of the Kiangsu-Chekiang Railways from people possessed to government possessed. Could the shareholders of these railways today, who have not as yet received the value of their shares, direct the railways on the ground that it was so during the Ching Dynasty? It is therefore needless to ask whether the applications submitted in the third year of the Emperor Shien-tung still have effect today.

"Even if we suppose that it is lawful for the Ministry to assume this power of superintending the company, it should first inquire into the lawfulness of the charge, whether it is presented by the shareholders in accordance with the constitution of the company, and whether the evidence is conclusive and then turn over the case to the ordinary Court of Law to be dealt with. It is not right to issue a mandate to arrest people as if it were by an Emperor, without first making sure that the charges are made according to law and that the evidence is complete.

"Moreover Fu is the Superintendent of the Bank of China and as such the government has power to deal with him directly. But now the mandate is not to investigate the Bank of China but the China Merchants' Company. It is therefore clear and cannot be denied that the government is dealing with Fu as the Director of the China Merchants' Company and not as superintendent of the Bank of China. What an indiscriminate use of power!

"It is certainly a very bad precedent to act as if the government was a court of appeal, and henceforth if any officer of a company is charged, the whole company will be affected, and on the petition of a few individuals, no matter whether they be shareholders or not, it is enough to shake an entire organisation. Then where shall shareholders look for protection for the money they invest and where shall officers of a company look for protection for the business they do? The lawful rights of a company will have no protection whatever. It is the daily promise of the President and the Premier to the nation to restore law and peace. How is it that such unlawful actions should be done by the government?

"As to the relationship between a company and its shareholders it has long before been published in the constitution. The shareholders have their power to act according to law, and none can destroy it by bringing out appeals and charges. The government must also act in accordance with the constitution in its dealings with a company, and cannot use the power that has already been abolished to press upon the merchants. Recently it has been reported that the Ministry of Communication plans to mortgage the China Merchants' Steam Navigation Company. The steps to be taken are arrest of its Directors, investigation into its management, and nationalisation of the company. Now the first two steps come actually into action. It is true that the Ministry of Communications declares that it has no such intention. But when a tiger tries to kep a flock of sheep and declares it has no bad intention towards them, the sheep naturally feel suspicious. It is best to leave the sheep alone.

"Fu Chung Yao is but an ordinary merchant. This great attention on him simply increases his worth. But the President in his desire to see right done acts seriously and quickly. He allows the wolves on the high ways and blames the fox. It is an instance of working at the wrong end. We, members of the Provincial Assembly, respect the law and greatly fear that henceforth the people's rights according to law will often be trampled down by the superior force of the government officials, and merchant companies harmed without limit. We submit our opinions in a straight forward way, and beg that the President and Premier will withdraw the mandate.

"Whether or not Fu Chung Yao is guilty can be dealt with separately from the case of China Merchants' Company which shall be determined by its shareholders according to its constitution.

"As to the unlawful action of Kao En Hung in crumbling merchant rights and his indiscriminate use of power we beg to request that he be removed from his office at once and handed over to the High Commissioners to be tried, so that the laws of the nation may be fulfilled and people's indignation pacified."

A similar telegram was sent on the same day by another 32 members of the Provincial Assembly requesting the President and Premier to withdraw the mandate to investigate China Merchants' Company.

ST. JOHN'S WINS FROM SOOCHOW; SCORE IS 1—0

Lone Tally Is Scored In Second Half Of Hard Fought Game

In a hard fought game last Saturday, the St. John's University football team defeated the Soochow eleven on the latter's ground by a score of 1 to nil. Both teams were greatly handicapped by the severe weather and each came out scoreless at the interval. The St. John's team succeeded in scoring the lone goal in the second period, thereby winning one of the games in the North China Intercollegiate football championship series.

baseline. His service was superior to that of the Hongkong player, but he too served many double faults. His driving had plenty of sting behind it and was usually well placed.

"On the whole the players were very evenly matched and it was only the local champion's baseline tactics that won him the match."

The Wade-Ng match went to five sets, 3-6, 6-2, 6-3, 3-6, 6-4, and there was a fine display of tennis fireworks in the last set, which was to determine the outcome of the match. In this set Ng got a big start, running the games to 5-1.

"Wade, however, was by no means beaten," the paper continues. "He played desperately and while everyone was looking for Ng to win at almost every game the Shanghai man gradually crept up amid great excitement to 5-4. His volleying and placing were splendid and were worrying the local man a lot. Several times he appeared beaten with balls which travelled up the side-lines but recovered in fine style. Wade had all the luck, however, for twice in the ninth game, his ball struck the net and just managed to get over with the Hongkong player on the baseline. The tenth game brought the set and the match to an end. Ng was serving and led 40-love. Wade putting three into the net. Then it went to 40-15. Wade at a critical stage of the game adopting desperate measures and smashing well out of Ng's reach. After a short rally, Wade just volleyed over the baseline, giving Hongkong the set 6-4.

"It was a gruelling, fluctuating game. Both men made wonderful recoveries at times and Wade's effort to save the last set was particularly fine and provided a very thrilling finish."

In the other singles contest Mr. J. Elmore, of Shanghai, defeated Mr. M. W. Lo of Hongkong, 6-2, 7-5, 6-8, 7-5.

Hongkong, by winning the doubles and one of the singles, captured the series.

Next Mail To America Goes Sunday On McKinley; Jackson Arrives Today

Taking 51 cabin passengers and mail from this port, the President Cleveland will sail from the Standard Oil Wharf at daybreak today and is due in San Francisco via Kobe, Yokohama and Honolulu on December 17.

Four more vessels will sail for America during this week and the next mail for the States will go on the President McKinley on Sunday. The China and the Taiyo Maru will leave Woosung for Japan ports, Honolulu and San Francisco late Thursday evening; the Empress of Russia is to sail for Vancouver on Saturday and the President McKinley leaves for Seattle on Sunday.

Both the China and the Taiyo are due at Woosung from Hongkong early tomorrow morning and the tender with incoming passengers are expected at the Customs jetty between 9 and 10 o'clock. The outgoing tender with passengers and baggage for the Taiyo will leave at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, and the one for the China will leave at 3 o'clock.

The trans-Pacific liner President Jackson, from Seattle, arrived at Woosung late last night. The tender arrived at about 11:30 p.m. Among passengers arriving was Mr. Alfred Sze, Minister to Washington, who was met by a delegation of prominent local Chinese.

The steamer Nile is to dock at the China Merchants Lower Wharf about 8 o'clock this morning and sails for Hongkong at 7 a.m. tomorrow. The vessel comes from San Francisco, Honolulu and Japan ports and had on board 17 passengers, nine bags of mail, 1,000 tons of cargo and 139 bars of silver bullion for this port.

MAILS FOR EUROPE

The last mail for European ports via the Suez to be sent by the British Post Office before its withdrawal will go on the P. and O. steamer Karmala next Saturday and is to close at 5 p.m. tomorrow. Ordinary mail may be posted at the Chinese Post Office up to 8 o'clock Saturday morning and registered at 7:30 a.m.

The liner is due in Shanghai from Kobe this morning and sails for London on Saturday morning. The tender Gutzlaff with outgoing passengers will leave the Customs jetty at 9 o'clock, and heavy baggage should be delivered to the lighter alongside the Customs jetty between 2 and 3 p.m. Friday.

With the next European mail, the steamer Plassy of P. and O. is expected to arrive in Shanghai on December 7. The vessel comes from London and was due to leave Singapore on Monday afternoon. The Nellore of the same line left London at 2 p.m. on November 23 and is due in Shanghai about January 4.

The Emil Kirdoff, the first passenger boat of the Hugo Stinnes line, left Rotterdam for Singapore on November 4, simultaneously with the Rotterdam Lloyd mail boat. Passengers for Batavia and Sourabaya will be transhipped at Singapore to the K.P.M. boat.

According to the Soer Handelblad, the boats of this liner are very comfortably equipped.

CATHOLIC CLUB DANCE

Stephen Power On Trial On Embezzlement Charge At Tientsin Consular Court

Former Peking And Tientsin Agent Of Sun Life Insurance Company On Trial For Theft

Trial of the case of Stephen Power, former agent at Peking and Tientsin of The Sun Life Insurance Company of Canada who was arrested at Vancouver, B. C. and brought back to China to answer charges of embezzlement, has been opened in the British Consular Court at Tientsin following the extradition proceedings that were held here when the accused was brought back from Canada.

Following is a report of the first session of the trial which is reprinted from the North China Daily Mail:

Stephen Power, late agent of the Sun Life Insurance Co. of Canada, was brought up in the British Consular Court at Tientsin before Mr. Russell Brown Saturday morning, on charges of theft and embezzlement of the company's money. Power was seated in court. Mr. Mounsey of Messrs. Kent and Mounsey peared for the prosecution and Mr. R. T. Evans for the accused.

ASKS SECRET HEARING

Mr. Evans at the outset made an application under an order of the Court for the exclusion of the public. He asked that representatives of the Press be notified that the proceeding be not published. He submitted that it was improper that evidence which would have to be given in the trial before a jury should be made public in the locality where the trial would take place.

Mr. Mounsey opposed the application. Not sufficient reason was given for an application of this nature. It would amount to holding the hearing in camera. He believed a similar application had been made at Shanghai in the Supreme Court and had been turned down. It was an ordinary criminal prosecution, and a good deal had been already reported in the Press in connection with the extradition proceedings at Shanghai. To conduct such cases in camera was open to objection. Better grounds were necessary than mere damage to feelings.

Mr. Evans said that feelings were not material. The reason for his application was that it was improper for a locality to be informed of the evidence in advance. It might be difficult to obtain a panel of unprejudiced jurors.

His Honor: It is open to the defence to challenge any one of the jurors.

Mr. Mounsey said the course proposed would create a dangerous precedent.

The Court made no order upon the application.

Mr. Mounsey said the accused became agent and servant of the Sun Life Insurance Co. of Canada, under agreement, about April 1, 1919, and continued till the end of June this year. It was his duty under the agreement to pay all moneys, directly they were received, into the company's account, whether at Peking, Tientsin or Shanghai, and to account for them from time to time.

WENT TO CANADA

Serious defalcations came to the company's notice, which culminated in the dismissal of the accused from their employment. It was found that certain sums had not come into the company's hands and had not been paid into their account. The accused left China about the end of June or beginning July for Vancouver. The company applied for a warrant, and Power was detained and brought back to Shanghai on certain definite charges—first, larceny of $2645.50 paid to the accused to hand over to an insured person as a loan on his policy. This sum was paid into the accused's own personal dollar account at Peking. The assured person did not receive the amount from Power, but did receive it subsequently from the company, who thus had to disburse the amount twice over.

There were further charges of embezzling three amounts received by the accused as renewal premiums, and not transferred to the company but kept by him. A fourth sum of $273 was mentioned in the extradition proceedings at Shanghai, but this had been traced, a corresponding sum having been paid into the company's tael account at Tientsin, and he therefore proposed to drop this charge and proceed with the charge of larceny and the three cases of embezzlement. He proposed to call as witnesses at this stage Mr. Ashcroft, of the company's staff, Mr. Cheng Kwei Hu, clerk to the company for some years, who kept the premium renewals book, and two gentlemen from the Hongkong Bank. He was sorry to say that certain extradition proceedings at Shanghai last summer had not been sent here. He had telegraphed to Shanghai for them but their absence might necessitate a remand. One document was the accused's agreement with the company, and another was a bill of exchange drawn by the accused.

Evidence was then taken.

BANK ACCOUNTS

Mr. A. H. Matthews; assistant in the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank at Peking, temporarily transferred to Tientsin, handed in a certified copy of Stephen Power's account from Dec. 31, 1921 to June 30, 1922, also of the account of the Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada for the same dates.

Mr. Evans: Will this witness testify at the trial?

Mr. Mounsey: I do not think so. The documents are now put in and the Bank may be saved the further trouble.

Witness cross-examined by Mr. Evans said he himself did not receive the draft for $2645 entered as having been sent from Shanghai. He simply examined the current accounts for the purpose of certifying these copies Mr. Ralph Butler Gotch assistant in the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank, Tientsin, produced certified copies of accounts of the accused and of the prosecuting company at Tientsin.

Mr. Mounsey said these copies were put in by order of the Court under the Banks Evidence Act, 1879.

THE AGREEMENT

Mr. Lancelot Ashcroft, resident secretary of the insurance company for the North China district, said the accused was agent at Tientsin and Peking from 1918 to 1922 His agreement was on the usual printed form.

Mr. Mounsey was about to ask particulars as to the printed agreement.

Mr. Evans asked for the original document.

Mr. Mounsey said this was one of the papers he was awaiting.

Mr. Evans: I have not seen it, that is my difficulty.

Mr. Mounsey: I quite appreciate the objection. To witness: What are the terms of the printed agreement?

Mr. Evans again objected that this evidence could not be put in unless the original agreement were produced.

His Honor said the witness could be asked what were the accused's duties.

Witness said Power's duties were to collect premiums, and remit them to the Shanghai office, to canvas, and to return to Shanghai any receipts not paid. He explained that receipts were forwarded to Power from Shanghai for collection of the amounts, and if the amounts were forthcoming such receipts were sent back to Shanghai. They were finished with so far as the Tientsin agent was concerned. Money remitted by the accused was usually sent by draft. Accused was entitled before remitting to make deductions of commission, salary and allowance. He deducted the commissions when he made up his account, and the salary and allowance once a month. His salary was sixty taels a month, and allowances one hundred and twenty five dollars a month. Witness produced the companys book of Peking preminums renewals showing among other things an item of March 19, 1922 for Tls 783.50 received from Wu Yung.

Mr. Evans objected that the book had not yet been put in as an exhibit.

Mr. Mounsey said it would be put in by the next witness, who made the entries in the book.

Mr. Evans objected that the present witness did not know of the facts.

Mr. Mounsey said the book would speak for itself.

Mr. Evans said that questions on the book should be asked of the person who kept it.

His Honor noted the objection and said the higher court would strike it out if it saw fit.

The witness then gave evidence of this and other sums paid to the accused and entered in the book but never received by the company. Receipts sent to Power for collection of these sums in January last were not returned to Shanghai. The company had insured one Chang Ching Hsih, an adviser to a Chinese Minister in Peking, and on instructions received a credit was entered to Power for $2545, to be handed to Mr. Chang. Power was notified and drew the amount, but the cash was never paid to the policy holder, who however was paid later by the company. Witness produced a receipt for the amount paid to Power, witnessed by Mr. Alexander Ramsay, the company's present agents in Peking. Power was dismissed in June last.

Mr. Mounsey gave notice that as Mr. Ashcroft was shortly going home, there would be no further opportunity for cross-examination.

Cheng Kwei Ju, clerk to the Sun Life company, gave evidence.

The case was adjourned till Tuesday, the accused being liberated on bail of $2,500.

Court Sustains Defense Raised In G. A. Bena Case

The point of jurisdiction raised by attorneys for the defense in the suit for Tls. 300,000 damages brought by Mr. G. A. Bena against Liu Vung-kwei and Li Ung-ching, Peking Chinese, is sustained in a judgment handed down by Italian Assessor Ferrajolo and Magistrate Loh of the Mixed Court, who hold that the suit was wrongly brought and should be taken to the Italian Court.

The case opened about a month ago with a somewhat sensational hearing at the Mixed Court, when Mr. Orin D. Walker, of Peking, was ruled out of court for insisting on addressing the Magistrate in Chinese after the Assessor had insisted on first knowing whether counsel had furnished security for the appearance of the Chinese defendants. The point of jurisdiction was raised by Mr. Walker and was supported by Mr. W. S. Fleming, who represented Dr. L. Cuzno, one of the members of the Italian group in the company against which Mr. Bena brought action on grounds of non-performance of agreement.

The text of the judgment is as follows:

"In this action the plaintiff seeks to recover from the defendants the sum of Tls. 300,000 for damages which he alleges he has suffered, defendants having failed to fulfil the provision and terms of a certain agreement signed on January 8, 1921 by said parties and others.

"Without giving any substantial consideration to the verbal evidence given by the plaintiff, the Court finds that the agreement referred to has been superseded by the Act of Constitution of the Company made in the Italian Consulate and duly approved by the Italian Court in which full effect has been given to the terms and provisions made in the said preliminary hearing.

"The Court therefore, is of the opinion that all obligation under the contract of January 8 1921 are to be considered invalid and that this action is wrongly brought by the plaintiff.

"Even if the preliminary agreement could have been considered still in force it should be remarked that it was not agreed that plaintiff should hand over his firm as a going concern to the new company. What was agreed upon was that the Italian group should bring into the Company the firm G. A. Bena which is rather a different matter.

"However, it seems perfectly clear that plaintiff ought to sue the company in the Italian Court where the damages, if any, would be apportioned in the proper way among the shareholders and the Chinese shares collected through the Chinese Court of Peking."

The basis of action in the case was an allegation of Mr. G. A. Bena that an agreement had been entered into between him and the defendants whereby they would establish a Sino-Italian Company with a capital of Mex. $1,500,000 out of which capital the defendants promised to take up and pay $745,000. It was also agreed that Mr. Bena should hand over his firm to the new company on March, 1921, said company being registered in the Italian Consulate. Mr. Bena alleged that the defendants failed to comply with their agreement and as result he suffered damages to the amount of Tls. 300,000 after handing over his going concern to the newly established company.

Shortly after the petition was filed, Dr. L. Cuzno, an Italian living in Peking, filed here an affidavit to the effect that the agreement entered into in the formation of this Sino-Italian Company was between an Italian group and a Chinese group. The Italian group composed of C Pontalozzi, G. A. Bena, P. Gebello and Dr. L. Cuzno and the Chinese group was composed of Liu Wei Kwei and Li Ching. Dr. Cuzno further held that no action could be taken by an individual of one group against the other group except in the name and authority of the group represented.

Mr. Fleming, in the answer he filed subsequently, contended that defendant never made any agreement with the plaintiff for the payment of $75,000 for the firm G. A. Bena. He also alleged that the plaintiff by misrepresentation induced the defendants to advance Tls. 20,211.45 to the new company, which sum was squandered, misappropriated or lost by the plaintiff, and that during the six months the plaintiff was in charge of the business the new company had a deficit of Tls 37,523.66. Mr. Fleming also said that a member of the Italian group in this new company has already filed a civil suit against Mr. Bena in Milan, Italy.

Troop Movements Making Ichang Fear; Take $10,000

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Ichang, Nov. 23.—The people of Ichang for some time past have been showing signs of uneasiness, and, although at first there seemed to be not very much cause for it as things were quiet and there were very few soldiers in the town, events have since proved that they were right.

General Sun Chuan-Fang, who has been stationed here for some years, has now been appointed Commissioner of the Yangtsze and has had to remove his headquarters. As usual he is taking his troops with him and they are being brought down from the Patung district on their way to their new station.

Many of them passed through Ichang yesterday and a demand was made on the Chamber of Commerce for "Travelling expenses." It appears probable that this demand was accompanied by threats for the Chamber of Commerce speedily got together the decent little sum of $10,000, which they paid over, and once more purchased security.

ROADS AGAIN UNSAFE

The roads to the country are again reported unsafe and parties on the road have to travel together for mutual protection. Two men were recently executed for robbery with violence by the orders of General Chao, the Defence Commissioner of Ichang and Shihnan. One of them was put to death on the foreshore opposite the China Merchants Steam Navigation Company's premises.

It is understood that representations have been made to Brigadier Lu commanding at Patung with regard to the holding up of salt junks on the borders of Szechuan and Hupeh by brigands who demanded a considerable sum per bag of salt before allowing the junks to proceed. General Lu replied that he had scattered the bandits and this appears to have been the case as now the junks are allowed to travel down without molestation on the border.

AGLEN IS VISITOR

Ichang has recently had a visit from Sir Francis Aglen, the Inspector-General of Customs, who made a trip to Ichang and Chungking after having laid the foundation stone of the new Customs House at Hankow. Sir Francis returned to Hankow on November 19.

The river having now fallen too low for large steamers, sailings have been suspended for the season and the vessels are proceeding to Shanghai for the winter. A new upper-river steamer, the Tsesui, has appeared on the run, flying the Chinese flag. She has been chartered by the Nisshin Kisen Kaisha and is expected to sail during most of the winter as she is of very light draught. She carries about 65 tons of cargo.

Another light-draught boat, the Hsiakiang, which could not be run profitably during the summer has now returned from Shanghai and both of these vessels have already made their first winter trip to Chungking. The only other boat that can run for another trip or two is the Kikin. There is great interest here in the attempt which is to be made to keep these vessels running right through the w

HONAN BANDITS SEEK TO SEIZE ARMS FACTORY

Arsenal At Kunghsien Goal Of Marauders; Destroy Chenghsiang

(China Press Service)

Hankow, Nov. 27.—Latest reports from Kunghsien indicate that bandits still are active in south-western Honan. The bandits at Kunghsien have made desperate attempts to seize the arsenal in that district, but the authorities concerned have taken every precaution in that connection.

Chenghsiang, a village about forty li to the South of Kunghsien, has been devastated by the bandits. Looting and burning of houses on a large scale are reported.

The bandits at Kunghsien, Tangyin, Linhsien, Luyieh, Kaocheng and Nanyangfu have so strengthened their foothold that the Government troops have found it extremely hard to cope adequately with the situation.

Gen. Wu Pei-fu has decided to dispatch the 3rd Chihli Division to suppress the bandits at Nanyangfu, where the situation is most critical. Tuchun Hsiao Yao-nan of Hupeh has been instructed by Gen. Wu to accommodate the 3rd Chihli Division with 200,000 rounds of munitions and to send one battalion of troops to Sinyang in order to launch a combined attack on the bandits.

STILL LOOM LARGE

(Independent News Agency)

Hankow, Nov. 23.—The bandit menace in Honan still is looming large in North China, and chances of their invading neighboring provinces are seen according to foreign travelers who have just arrived from Honan. Government troops apparently are incompetent to cope with the situation. Their fighting power is languid and degenerating, indicating that all colorful versions of their strength are exaggerations of facts.

When trains pass through Honan between Sinyangchow and Chumatien, all lamps are extinguished. The engines are set at full speed to avoid being caught in the net of brigands who hover nearby.

It is further reported that Lao Yang-jen, the Bandit Chief, has asked Wu Pei-fu to pay up $1,000,000 before they retire. Failing this they threaten to hem in the ancient town of Loyang, or Honanfu, and unseat the Warlord right on spot.

TAKE FOREIGN VIEW

(Independent News Service)

Hankow, Nov. 23.—Interviewed by four representatives of the Foreign Committee on the Honan situation, Mr. Yu Chao-peh, Speaker of the National Associated Chambers of Commerce of China now holding their annual conference at Hankow, stated that the Chambers are in full sympathy with foreigners who are now suffering through lawlessness in Honan. Mr. Soo Ming-seng, another representative of the National Chambers, in reply to the presentations of the foreign committee and their desire that the Chinese Chambers of Commerce should take a strong stand in this matter in order to urge the government to effectively suppress banditary in Honan, said that telegrams have already been wired to Peking as well as Paotingfu and Loyangfu urging them to effect the release of foreign captives. Both General Wu Pei-fu and Marshal Tsao Kun have replied to the National Chambers Conference in Hankow stating that the bandits will be suppressed very soon."

Arrest Chinese Arms Smuggler In Seattle

Disclosing what they declare is a nation-wide plot to ship arms and ammunition to Chinese revolutionists, secret government agents this morning arrested Lee Foye-son, wealthy Chinese merchant of Boston, and seized four chests containing ammunition cleverly concealed in their secret walls, says the Seattle Times of October 13. Brief mention of the arrest was made in China Press dispatches at the time.

Agents became suspicious when informed that baggage had been received here for shipment to China, broke open the chests at the O. W. Railroad station this morning and found the rifle ammunition stuffed into hollow openings in the walls of the huge boxes. One of the chests had been slightly opened in shipment from Boston, it is said.

Son was questioned by Roy Darling, chief of the Department of Justice for this district, and later by Charles E. Allen, assistant United States district attorney. He admitted the shipment of the ammunition, it is said, but refused to divulge the purpose for sending it to China.

Mr. Allen will file a complaint this afternoon charging Son with shipping explosives without marking, he said. This offense carries a punishment of eighteen months in prison or a fine of $2,000, or both, upon conviction.

Son told government officers that he had been a merchant in Boston, engaged in business. He said that the was on his way back to China with his mother, who accompanied him.

The chests had arrived two days ago and had been turned over to a local Chinese transfer company for transfer to an Admiral Line boat en route to China. The authorities stated today that further investigation would be conducted.

ITALY PUTS ALL POWER IN HAND OF GOVERNMENT

(Reuter's Service)

Rome, Nov. 27.—The Chamber by 275 votes against 90 passed a resolution entrusting to the Government full powers till December 31, 1923, to reorganise the fiscal system and the administration of public affairs. The Chamber then indefinitely adjourned.

Institute For Chinese Blind Announces Christmas Sale

The Institute for the Chinese Blind at 4 Edinburgh Road is offering any number of attractive articles in black and white split bamboo, reed and wicker work for sale as a special Christmas feature.

Many of the boys in the school are self supporting. Three hundred dollars worth of goods must be sold and ordered in order that these boys may continue their education.

The split bamboo work in black and white patterns is very reasonable in price and among the articles for sale are flower, fruit candy or sewing baskets, rugs, fire screens and large folding screens. The reed and wicker work runs chiefly to tables, lamp stands, steamer chairs, chairs and bookcases.

The school is open to visitors and Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Fryer, superintendents, will gladly show guests through the school rooms, the work rooms and living quarters of the school.

Through the generosity of the members of the Rotary Club, a new work room has been built which enables the school to enlarge its output.

There are 46 pupils in the Institution ranging from nine to 22 years of age. These pay from one dollar a month up to a hundred dollars a year for board and expenses. The students come from a number of provinces including Hunan, Shantung, Anhwei, Kwangtung, Chekiang, Kiangsu, Fengtien, Szechuen, Hupeh and Kiangsi. According to Mrs. Fryer the blind boy, some member of his family or a friend hears of the school in Shanghai and every effort is made to send the boy here in order that he may receive an education.

Following their graduation the blind boys are able to secure positions. One graduate is a tutor at St. John's University.

JUSTICE IS CRY OF CHINESE TO CINEMA FOLKS

Students In Britain Scoff At Way Public Is Being Gulled

Edinburgh, (By Mail).—At a conference in Edinburgh of the Central Union of Chinese Students of Great Britain and Ireland, C. N. Oon, chairman, entered a protest against misrepresentations frequently being made concerning the people of China. He had come into personal contact a good deal, he said, with the people of Britain, he liked them, but they had some minor prejudices against the Chinese which he was most anxious to overcome.

There was much in the attitude of the British press with which he disagreed and above all, he objected to the more lurid cinema producers.

The cinema, he declared, represented China as a land of mystery, and in accepting that representation of the Chinese there was no doubt that the British public had been gulled. Then, again the novelist with his outlandish plot to work out turned to China for a background, and the same public swallowed the whole thing. Too often also the political writer, he stated, made subtle misrepresentations, assumed a prophetic mantle when dealing with China and gave expression to sentiments soured by prejudice and limited vision.

CHINESE QUARTER SPREADS

The Chinese quarter in the East end of London was rapidly overflowing and verging on to the heart of the city, and it was there he found the genesis of the unreasonable opinions held by many who accepted the dweller in Limehouse as a real type of China, he declared. The Chinese he said, regret the presence of these people in England. They resent their presence there more even than ever could the people of London, and would like to have them shipped back at once to China.

Dr. R. K. S. Lim spoke of the growth of the Chinese student colony in Edinburgh. It was 40 years ago, he said, since the first Chinese student came to the city and on returning to China, he distinguished himself as a litterateur. It was not, however, until some time between 1904 and 1906 that the first Edinburgh Union properly was constituted. At present, there are more than 40 Chinese students resident in the city, and their number is steadily increasing.

The Chinese student was adaptable, he said, and the fact that sports had bulked largely in the program of the conference showed that one of the most characteristic phases of British spirit had not been overlooked. At least one Chinese woman student in Edinburgh had distinguished herself at hockey.

DISCUSS FOREIGN CAPITAL

A discussion took place afterward on a motion that China should encourage employment of foreign capital in developing her economic resources. On a vote this motion was defeated, 17 to 12. In opposing the motion, Mr. Oon said China had never tried to find out whether or not she possessed sufficient capital of her own. Foreign concessions and extraterritorial rights, which had resulted from the use of capital from foreign sources were nightmares to the Chinese, he asserted.

H. T. Silcock spoke on Szechuen, in which province he had spent 10 years. Speaking of the vast resources of the country, he said that the amount of coal in the province was almost limitless, and it also contained iron and salt. Characteristics of the Szechuenese were virility and independence, and in the present unrest and tension between the north and south, it was those tendencies that were largely responsible for much of the fighting, he added.

200 Killed And 700 Injured By This Blast

THIS is the first picture to reach Shanghai of the town of San Terenzo, Italy, where 200 persons were killed and 700 seriously injured by the explosion of huge munitions dumps.

French Ban Aliens As Land Owners And America Objects

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Nov. 27.—A message from Washington states that the American Ambassador at Paris has been instructed to make representations to the French Government with regard to the bill, adopted by the French Chamber of Deputies and now before the Senate, forbidding aliens to hold property in France without the approval of the French Government, which is considered prejudicial to American interests. French officials point out that the bill is directed against possible enemy aliens and not against the Allies.

Exchange Fluctuations

Asia Banking Corporation

November 28, 1922

Spot bar silver was down ⅛d. and forward 3-16d. in London yesterday. The New York price declined to 64¼ cents and the London-New York cross rate improved to 452⅝.

The only change in our official quotations here today was a rise in the Franc rate to 1000. Our market here throughout the morning was easy. At one time there were no sellers of Sterling at better than 3-1 9-16 for any delivery and of Gold Dollars at 70¾.

However, subsequently the market steadied up and later in the day a fair amount of business in Sterling was done at 3s. 1⅛d. for November-December delivery and in Gold Dollars at 70⅝ for November, 70⅞ for December and 71 for forward delivery.

At the close there were sellers of Sterling at 3s. 1⅛d. for November-December and buyers at this rate for January.

The Gold Dollar market was steadier at the close, there being sellers at 70⅝ for November, 71 for December and 71⅛ for forward. Banks were quoting 3s. 2⅛d. for Sterling bills, 72¾ for Gold Dollar bills and 1050 for Franc bills.

China and America sold silver in London yesterday and India bought. The market there is reported as closing uncertain although the undertone is given as weak.

New York advise that a fair amount of business was done in their market at the official quotation.

Russia's Commerce Showing Big Gains For Half Year

(Rosta News Agency)

Moscow, October 28.—Russia's imports of goods from foreign countries rapidly increased from month to month during the period from January to May, 1922, the imports in the latter month exceeding those in the former by almost five times. A decline in imports is to be observed in the month of June, but on analysis it appears that this decline is due entirely to reductions in the imports of foodstuffs and other goods destined for famine relief purposes.

The amount of imports during this period in 1,000's of tons and in 1,000's of roubles at 1913 values is as follows:

	1,000 Tons	1,000 R'bles
January	91	15,090
February ...	143	17,595
March	276	27,390
April	355	62,831
May	444	84,801
June	328	58,612
Total 1,637		266,719

A considerable part of these imports, thirty-two percent, consists of goods (mostly foodstuffs) directed to the various famine-relief organisations operating in Russia; another forty-two percent consists of other foodstuffs. For the last two years foodstuffs have figured largely in Russia's imports (they comprised thirty-six percent of the total 1921 imports) but there is every reason to hope that this item will be almost completely eliminated from the import program in 1923. Metals and machinery will then figure more prominently, and become the main items of Russian imports, as they were previous to the war, and as they were intended to be when Russia resumed trade with the outside world in 1920. They formed twenty percent of the import in 1921, and less than five percent of the imports in the first half of 1922. After foodstuffs and famine relief, the largest item of import in this period was fuel, chiefly coal.

The following is an anaysis of the imports for 6 months.

Foodstuffs	704,190
Animal products ...	3,400
Seed, timber, etc. ..	82,130
Earthenware	4,640
Fuel, pitch, etc. ...	193,510
Chemicals	13,510
Ores, metals, etc. ..	71,970
Paper goods, etc. ..	32,110
Textiles and yarns ..	2,870
Wearing apparel ...	1,330
Famine aid	527,350
	1,637,010

Compared with the corresponding period of 1921 we find that the import of foodstuffs (apart from famine relief) has increased ten times: seed, etc., nearly eight time; fuel six times; metals are almost double; the import of chemicals is the same in both periods, while the import of textiles has decreased by half. The total imports during these two periods show that the imports in the first half of 1922 exceeded that of 1921 nine times, and even if the imports for famine relief purposes are excluded, the increase is nearly six times.

An examination of the countries of origin of these imports shows to what an extent Russia's foreign trade has been extended, and the great progress made in the resumption of her economic relations with the rest of the world. In the first half of 1921 Russia was trading with about half a dozen countries, Great Britain, the United States, the Scandinavian and the Baltic countries. In the corresponding period of 1922 Russia is trading with nearly a score of countries, additions being the Argentine, Rumania, Bulgaria, and France, although imports from the last are still small. Trade began with the Argentine in May, when 42,000 tons of grain and flour were imported.

The United States, Great Britain, and Germany remain the chief supplying countries for Russia's imports, but Rumania and Finland during this period run Germany close, and have the Baltic and Scandinavian countries behind.

The exports for individual months are as follows:

	Tons.	Roubles
January ..	17,300	4,447,000
February .	3,400	1,676,000
March	7,700	2,707,000
April	25,600	4,506,000
May	122,300	7,407,000
June	69,800	4,104,000
Total .	246,100	24,847,000

The total exports for the corresponding period of the year 1921 amounted to 43,000 tons, about one-sixth of the exports in the first half of 1922. The chief items of export were timber, oil, metal scrap, and a large consignment of 10,000 tons of manganise ore in April to Turkey. The chief countries to which Russian exports were consigned were Turkey Latvia, Finland, and Britain.

Pacific Coast Wants Anti-Narcotic Bill

(China Press Service)

Seattle.—Ten thousand letters are speeding today from Seattle and Washington cities to Senator Joseph I. France in Washington, D. C., urging him to introduce on the first day Congress convenes his noted "France Bill," which provides a "sensible manner of taking care of the nation's 2,000,000 narcotic addicts."

Representative Stephen G. Porter's name is on 10,000 more letters mailed out of Seattle and Washington towns within the last forty-eight hours. He is being urged to act with Senator France and on the first day of Congress introduce his bill calling for an international opium conference.

The deluge of letters is due to the activities of the White Cross and is part of the same method used by which the China Club obtained the adoption of the Jones-Miller anti-narcotics bills.

"This is our opening gun," said Dr. William K. McKibben, executive secretary of the White Cross. "At a meeting in Seattle last night 2,000 letters were pledged. These are now on their way to Washington. Teachers of Skagit County today are mailing out 2,000 letters. Teachers in Spokane, Yakima, Pullman, Tacoma and other cities also are writing, approximately 10,000 letters today to Senator France and Representative Porter.

"Soon Oregon plans to send in its deluge. Next, Idaho will deluge Congress with letters. California is being organised. Congress will know for a certainty that the Pacific Coast wants the France and Porter bills passed."

M. Clemenceau In America

IN view of M. Clemenceau's exciting visit to the United States, the following, from the pen of Stephane Lauzanne, Editor-in-Chief of Le Matin, written on the eve of the ex-French Premier's departure for America should be of special interest:

France has not been overpleased in hearing that M. Clemenceau intended to go to America. France knows that not much good can result from the trip and France fears that much evil may come of it.

M. Clemenceau has been, all his life long, rather a destructive than a constructive power. For years and years he has used his running, his eloquence, his influence to overthrow cabinets. No French statesman, even the most patriotic, has been spared by him. He assailed Gambetta, killed Jules Ferry and undermined Delcasse. He invented Boulanger. When, in 1907, he took the reins of government into his hands, he called to office Joseph Caillaux, the most sinister figure of the Third Republic, appointing him Minister of Finance and General Picquart, the most mediocre officer of the French army, appointing him Minister of War.

When, 1914, the war broke out, he systematically refused to give his support to the various national cabinets and weakened the "Union sacree," by daily criticising in his paper, "L'homme Enchaine," Poincare, Viviani and even Joffre.

It is only in 1917, when there was nothing more to destroy, and when France was on the brink of the abyss, that he turned his power of destruction against the enemy. Then, for the first time, he served his country. Nobody tries to minimise the value of his services. To him is due in great part the victory of the Allies. But hardly had he gained this victory than he again took up his demolisher's pickax. And, with his own hands, he worked at the demolishing of his victory.

The Treaty of Versailles is his work, together with President Wilson and Lloyd George. It is the most detestable treaty that history has ever recorded. It is a treaty which sets forth every problem without resolving any single one. It is a treaty which is so complicated and nebulous that the American Senate solemnly refused to ratify it; that the British government has silently torn to pieces bit by bit, and that vanquished Germany has been able to get out of fulfilling its stipulations. It is a treaty which presumed the everlasting and close collaboration of all the Allies, when the collaboration was a thing humanly impossible, and when it was inevitable that each one of the Allies would be unable to subordinate his interests eternally to the interests of his neighbor. It is a treaty which, at all events, is characterised by this facts that France, devastated but victorious has not been able to recover one single cent from Germany, intact but vanquished, after four years of peace.

It was to be hoped at least that, after having made such a treaty, M. Clemenceau would be silent in his retreat. But this is not the case. Since four years he has never ceased, through his partisans and his followers, from rendering the task of those who have tried to make the best out of a bad instrument impossible. M. Millerand, M. Briand, M. Poincare have each one in turn been cunningly undermined and attacked by M. Clemenceau. And today he proclaims his intention to lay the blame on America and states that he is going to denounce simultaneously Mr. Wilson, and the Senate who overthrew Mr. Wilson.

"I am going," said he, "to talk squarely to America."

Now, no friend has to talk squarely to another friend. Before striking the chest of others it is preferable to strike one's own chest.

Americans, whether Republicans or Democrats, would commit the greatest blunder if they were to consider M. Clemenceau as speaking for France; M. Clemenceau will speak only for himself.

The Republicans of the United States have often reproached France with having listened too [illegible] President Wilson, when he came over to France in 1918, because he had been disavowed and repudiated by the American people at the November elections of 1918. The French, rightly or wrongly, have argued that they could not do otherwise, because President Wilson, even disavowed and repudiated, was still the official chief of a great nation. The Republicans would commit a worse blunder today if they were to listen too seriously to M. Clemenceau. He has been disavowed and repudiated by the French National Assembly in January, 1920, when Paul Deschanel was elected President of the French Republic by some 650 votes, and when he himself only obtained twenty votes. The following day M. Clemenceau had to resign the Premiership. Today he is neither President, nor Minister, nor Senator, nor even a party leader. He is a plain individual. Only two men have the right today to speak in the name of France: M. Millerand, who is at the head of the State, and M. Poincare, who is at the head of the government.

May the audiences of the Waldorf in New York and of the Auditorium in Chicago kindly remember that. And if on hearing the explanations of the old man, some Americans are shocked by his sarcasms, his irony and his reproaches, may they bear in mind that they are not hearing the voice of France! The voice of France is not sarcastical, nor ironical, nor reproachful—especially when it addresses America. It is calm and serene, asking only for justice and knowing that the country of Lincoln will never stand in her way toward justice.

-:- Still In The Woods -:-

The leading economists of Europe and America are of the opinion that a return to a sound credit basis or to honest money values represented by the gold standard is impossible for some time, says The Financial Review, of Oct. 28.

Mr. Henderson of Clare College, Cambridge, insists that "monetary stabilization of any kind, new-fangled or old-fashioned, is not possible today, and will not be possible for several years. . . . The only sensible monetary policy for the immediate future is 'to wait and see.'" The "wait and see" policy is conditioned largely upon what America does and possesses interesting phases.

Prof. Bullock of Harvard thinks that the restoration now of pre-war standards in currencies would be too severe a task and would end in total or partial national bankruptcy.

The day following Prof. Bullock's address the Chancellor of Germany made the proposal that his country's government should voluntarily declare itself bankrupt, which must have been rather surprising to the Harvard expert and England's distinguished follower of Marshall and Pigou.

One thing appears certain: there are disasters much more formidable than that of government bankruptcy. Certainly increasing this rotten credit condition rather than trying to even curb it does not quite appeal to those who look at things realistically.

A Germany or an Austria declared bankrupt four years ago—which they were and are—would have been preferable to the kind of economic and moral demoralisation that exists there now and in fact exists all through Europe.

When a person shipwrecked at sea throws away the only life-saver he has the conclusion is that he is either insane or that he wishes to perish. Europe is shipwrecked and we do not think that all the mighty economists from Pigou to Keynes are able, or willing, to render any assistance.

But we do feel sure that any intelligent Chinese business man or any trader in the Bombay bazaar could and is willing to do this. The following opinion on the question of paper-money evils is by B. J. Foster, editor of the Monthly Review of Barclay's Bank of London. It is quoted here with a proper appreciation of its source, which may be prejudiced but it provides a pronounced contrast with that of certain economists who should view these questions without prejudice:

"So far as the European currencies are concerned, the first essential is that Government expenditure must be met from revenue or loans, and that the fatally easy expedient of meeting deficits by the issue of further supplies of paper money must be abandoned.

"Until this is accomplished progress is impossible, but, given a sound system of internal finance, the next step toward the reintroduction of a more general gold standard must be the devaluation of the more inflated currencies. It has become quite evident that the pre-war parity of certain currencies can never be restored, and that in many other cases it could only be secured by so drastic a deflation, that the hardship involved would be out of all proportion to the advantage gained.

"With a revaluation of certain currencies based upon the present approximate purchasing parity and possibly the adoption, in some form, of the gold exchange standard, the perplexities of the exchanges would be removed."

The Chrysanthemum In Japanese Life And History

The chrysanthemum comes as autumn's messenger, simultaneously with the month "Kikuzuki" hanetzake, for in Japan it is the flowers that mark and name the seasons, writes Marion Lucey in The Japan Advertiser. The Japanese people believe that poetry is present wherever nature is and second to nature's glorious growth of cherry-blossoms, they hold the chrysanthemum in highest esteem. They appreciate flowers more generally than we do; the whole population turns out to visit places which are noted for different kinds of blossoms. They do not allow the actual beauty of the flower to enter into their consideration of it but they have a deeper interpretation which gives an individual meaning to each one of the flowers, making "popular favorites of certain and neglecting others if they be thought unlucky.

While the cherry-blossom stands as a symbol of nature's gift of beauty to Japan, the chrysanthemum represent the achievement in nature of the Japanese gardener. The Japanese view cherry-blossoms with an overwhelming feeling of gratitude toward nature, they admire the chrysanthemums with pride in their success in attempting to beautifuly nature.

Although the chrysanthemum season is rather late this year the exhibition in Hibiya Park is beginning to attract its annual myriads of visitors. A wonderful diversity of blossoms in size, color and shape are gathered side by side. Almost all of these respond to some poetic and realistic appellation. A shaggy-haired chrysanthemum is introduced to its public as "Sleepy Head"; sparkling white snowy petalled blossoms twinkle even as their name, "Star-like One." A richly clustering pink and white flower is known as the "Robe of Fathers"; a dishevelled white chrysanthemum is christened "White Dragon." Several potted plants clustered together, speckled all over with dots of tiny bright yellow blossoms, are called "Golden Dew."

"Fisher's Lantern" is a dark russet; the "Flower of a Thousand Generations" is a tiny gold red-lined blossom which stands erect, solitary; "Moonlight" bears delicate silvery petals like so many rays of a clear autumn moon. Among the numberless plants exhibited there are two huge ones in a special enclosure which have been entered in the competition by the Department of the Imperial Household.

We are told that a remarkable new kind of chrysanthemum has just been grown by the gardeners of the Imperial Household. It has 16 petals and is called "Gomonshogiku (chrysanthemum crest).

In the olden days there used to be a yearly festival late in October which was extremely picturesque. It was customary for those who participated to wear a special robe, named "Kiku-Gasane," of a magnificent tone of purple over a pure white kimono. During the festival "Kikuzake," sake in which the stems of chrysanthemum flowers had been dipped, was served and the Emperor chose a subject upon which poems were to be composed in court circles. Nowadays the celebration of the Emperor's Birthday, into which the old Chrysanthemum Festival has become merged, the Fall Garden Party given at one of the Imperial Palaces and the height of the chrysanthemum season are all timed to coincide and harmonise appropriately with the maple season's rich autumnal tints.

Trying to establish the connecting link between the chrysanthemum, the nation's beloved flower, and the chrysanthemum, the sixteen petalled blossom, the badge of the Imperial family, has unearthed several contradictory stories from the realms of early Japanese history.

The chrysanthemum first made its appearance in Japan in the seventh century. It was imported from China and brought with it a superstition which the Chinese had fastened to it. In China the people thought that the juice in the stem of the chrysanthemum flower contained a magic power. Those who drank a beverage to which a few drops of the liquid had been added were supposed to become endowed with eternal life. But for some queer and unanswerable reason the beverage only took effect on philosophers. So the chrysanthemum became associated with Chinese philosophers who lived in solitude, away from the world of humans, in caves designated as "Caves of Mist"; and they took with them in their retirement a chrysanthemum plant which was believed to hold for them that remarkable gift of life-eternal.

The general opinion of historians seems to be that the Japanese people in receiving the chrysanthemum and its message from China transferred the belief in the magical power of the chrysanthemum's fluid from philosophers in their caves to retired Emperors whose abodes of recluse they subsequently named "Hako-yano-yama" (Cave of Mist).

From that original conception of the chrysanthemum as connected with retiring emperors it could easily have become their emblem.

One historian claims that shortly after the chrysanthemum had been introduced to Japan in the Heian epoch, an unreasoned craze for all things Chinese suddenly flooded Japan. With the growth of luxury and the increase of extravagance, all sorts of innovations were made at the Imperial court, the crests of the sixteen-petal chrysanthemum and of the Paulownia being introduced at that time.

Another version of the origin of the chrysanthemum crest by the Emperors of Japan dates back to 1198. Emperor Go-Toba, who had held the scepter 14 years, was forced to abdicate. He retired to the "Hako-yano-yama" (Cave of Mist), and to while away the time he made himself a sword on which he drew a chrysanthemum in symbol of his retirement. As eight was considered a lucky number in Shinto, he carved out 16 petals (twice 8) on the blade of his sword. When Go-Toba died, his successor adopted the chrysanthemum of the recluse Emperor's sword as his personal badge.

History makes no reference to the chrysanthemum until years later, when, without explaining when it was definitely adopted by the court, a statement of strict injunctions concerning the use of the sixteen petal chrysanthemum and the Paulownia imperials was issued in an edict by Hideyoshi.

But of all the stories about the origin of the sixteen-petal chrysanthemum crest, the following gives the prettiest picture:

Long, long ago the Japanese worshipped the sun, partly in deference to the Sun-Goddess, their ancestress, and partly in veneration of the sun itself. As the sun stood for them highest of all symbols they adopted it as the emblem of their Emperor, highest of all humans. Again the superstition regarding the lucky number eight comes in, for they designed a sun with sixteen rays (twice eight). For several centuries the sun with sixteen rays was used as the insignia of the Imperial family. Throughout the "Kojiki" there are tales which strangely blend dream and facts; they bear the characteristics of the myth and yet establish symbols which have descended through the ages. The story goes on to relate the Chinese philosophy of the chrysanthemum and the magic gift of life-eternal the liquid in its stem was supposed to hold. It affirms that the early Japanese took the chrysanthemum as the badge of their retiring emperors. No one knows exactly when it happened, but somehow the philosophy of the chrysanthemum was blended with the emblem of the sun, its sixteen rays becoming the sixteen petals of the flowers.

The following verse translated from a poem written at court in the days of Old Japan seems to interpret the beautiful attitude of the Japanese people toward their Emperor together with the philosophy of the chrysanthemum.

"Let the Emperor live forever. May he see the chrysanthemum cup go round autumn after autumn for a thousand years."

Hints For The Household

Fruit cakes need rather a hot oven just at first in order to get the mixture quickly, otherwise the fruit sinks to the bottom.

To make a delicious dressing for salad add a little currant jelly to equal parts of mayonnaise and sour cream dressing and whip.

Questions Relating To Einstein

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS
Eminent Astronomer and Authority on Subjects of Scientific Interest.

"At a total eclipse of the sun do astronomers calculate the combined effects of the sun, planets and moon with reference to the deflection of the light of stars in the vicinity of an eclipse? If deflection of starlight caused by the moon were measurable we should be able to photograph the moon in a field of stars almost any time, and this might furnish a table by which to compute the moon's position at any instant.—T. A. Gallagher, Detroit."

No, because the mass of the moon, or even that of the heaviest planet, is too slight to produce a measurable deviation of the light of a star passing near it. At equal distance from its center the gravitative force of the sun is 27,000,000 times that of the moon.

Owing to the relatively small radius of the moon the force at its surface is as much as about 1-170th of that at the sun's surface, but even this would be inappreciable in its effect on a grazing ray of light, for according to the Newtonian law the sun deviates such a ray only 0.87 of a second of arc, and even by Einstein's calculation the deviation is only one second and three-quarters. Whether Newton's theory on this point is right or Einstein's we shall perhaps know as soon as the results obtained at the eclipse of September 21 have been carefully worked out by the astronomers.

The difference between the two estimates of the effect of the sun's gravitation upon a ray of starlight passing close to its surface on its way to the earth, depends upon the difference between Newton's and Einstein's ideas of the nature of gravitation. According to Newton gravitation is a tendency of all matter to draw together, as if every particle exercised an attraction upon every other particle.

According to Einstein gravitation is a fundamental property of massive bodies, is inherently curved, and not straight away or flat, and this curvature causes the phenomena of gravitation. The exposition of this theory is purely mathematical and cannot be correctly stated in ordinary language, or in accordance with ordinary conceptions of physical facts. Most efforts to do so result in mere travesties.

"What can the 'dimension' time have to do with volume, or shape, of a body unless it is the apparent shape and not the actual shape due to speed of the body in relation to the point of observation? In looking at a motion picture of a racing automobile the shape of its wheels appears to be distorted, but is it actually distorted? I believe a little more common sense should be applied in scientific theories.—T. E. Brewster, New York."

The reference, in the reply to Mr. Gallagher to the travesties produced by some of the attempts to explain and extend Einstein's theory, finds a striking application in this matter of the alleged deformation of bodies in motion, sometimes referred to as the "Lorentz (or the Fitzgerald) Transformation."

The theory of such a transformation was invented to account for the fact that the celebrated experiment at Chicago by Michelson and Morley on the effects of the earth's supposed motion through the ether failed to reveal such motion since it showed that light traveled with exactly the same velocity whether it met the moving earth or followed it.

This it was suggested by Fitzgerald might be mathematically explained by a shortening of bodies in the direction of their motion. Such a shortening would undoubtedly account for the result of the Michelson-Morley experiment, but there is no physical, or indeed any other satisfactory, proof that any such shortening occurs. It is a mathematical supposition that is all contrived to give a theoretical solution of a puzzling problem.

A formula was fabricated by means of which the shortening of bodies in proportion to their velocity could readily be calculated, and readers and audiences were treated to Munchausen descriptions of the amazing consequences of being in motion when the velocity became a large fraction of that of light.

Grave lecturers assured their much edified hearers that if they were shot through space head first at so many thousand miles per second they would shorten from six feet to two or three—while retining the same girth as before. Serious investigators always recognised that the calculated shortening had no real or physical concomitant, being only a manner of exhibiting the effect of relativity of motion. The formula properly used and understood was not objectionable. It might serve for intellectual amusement at an evening party. Here it is for anybody who may wish to try it:

The length equals the square root of 1 minus the square of the velocity of the body divided by the square of the velocity of light.

For example, let the velocity be three-fifths that of light, then the length will be reduced one-fifth. If the velocity is nine-tenths that of light, the amount of shortening will be nearly three-fifths. If the velocity equalled that of light, the length would become zero!

Borneo's Venice

The city of Brunei, a couple of miles up the river of that name on the island of Borneo, known as the Venice of the East to dwellers in that land, but known not at all in the outside world, is one of the world's unique cities. It is built entirely on piles placed over the river, and stretches for a couple of miles on each side of the river. It is really a lot of little towns in one, with a population of 10,000, mostly Malays.

The respective trades are segregated each to an area of their own; thus you go to one part of the town to see the fishermen, another to see the metal workers and the merchants. Streets of bamboo intersect the rows of dwellings. Upon the verandas children entirely naked play or fish or dive into the river below. Children here are expert swimmers by the time they are four years old.

The city market is the only one of its kind in the world, for all marketing is done in boats on a certain portion of the river set aside for the purpose. Here daily the people of the town meet the people from the jungle and exchange manufactured goods for fruit, vegetables and game.

Making The Thanksgiving Table Gay

BY MRS. CHRIS. FREDERICK
(The distinguished authority on household efficiency)

Just what type of decoration to use for the Thanksgiving table will depend somewhat on the degree of formality and the number present. With many young people present we can have all sorts of favors and place-cards which would not be so fitting for a small table with older and distinguished guests. But let us think of the typical family table first.

Of all occasions, Thanksgiving Day demands the whitest, most lustrous all-over table cloth and napkins. We cannot imagine this feast served on colored cloths, nor on doilies.

The center piece is all important. A rustic basket of fruit, such as polished apples, pears and grapes, garlanded with bright Fall leaves or some of the evergreen plants which abound in the Fall woods in many places, is always in good taste, especially for the formal table. The shiny wax leaves of the wintergreen, the trailing beauty of the small red partridge berry with its most graceful tiny leaves or others of like kind can be used, twisted about the basket, looping from between the fruit to give a festive effect.

If the partridge berries are plentiful they alone make a picturesque and colorful centerpiece in any kind of glass bowl or ornamental dish.

The centerpiece may also be a miniature log cabin, a "Mayflower" ship, or some sort of "Jack Horner Pie," to be opened at the end of the meal. One attractive dinner table, for a young hostess and her young acquaintances had for a centerpiece a log cabin, with small Indian doll surrounding it, the whole set in a tiny forest made from branches of evergreen.

The place cards for the men guests were held in the arms of dolls dressed like Priscilla, the Puritan maiden, while the lady guests received dashing dolls wearing the clothes of John Alden. Another unique touch was added by having before each place paper turkeys filled with salted nuts. The host and hostess themselves were dressed as Puritans, and the dinner itself was a typical old-fashioned New England.

Golden yellow, so typical of this season, can be developed in the popular pumpkin centerpiece, using a small, real pumpkin which may have cut in it the Jack o'Lantern face which children love. Small paper pumpkins may be at each place, and, if desired, streamers of narrow green ribbon may connect the individual pumpkins with the large one in the center. Of course, the small ones are used to hold nuts or bonbons.

For those who like very "fussy" tables, the streamer effect may be carried further by using the rolls of narrow crepe paper (which are cut about two inches wide for this special purpose) and twisting them across the room at a height just over one's head, and possibly connecting them with a central chandelier. Pretty effects are obtained by using two contrasting rolls, such as orange and russet brown, orange and maroon, orange and green, etc. This idea makes a very gay room, enjoyed by all young persons.

In many cases the hostess will do well to visit the stores and see what novelties she can find for her decorating scheme. One often finds attractive little pumpkins, turkeys, baskets, etc. The pretty "ice-cups" of heavy white paper, covered on the outside with plaited or shirred crepe paper, can either be made by the quick-fingered hostess or bought very cheaply by the dozen in shades of red, yellow, etc.

The cranberry sauce or jelly, so closely associated with this holiday, may be served in fancy molds of a different style for each place at the table. Another good idea is to hollow out a rosy apple, have a face cut in the skin and put inside a small candle, to be lighted just before dinner is served.

The making of place cards has no end. They may be bought or home-made. Often a cut-out advertisement of a Puritan, pumpkin, turkey, etc., may be hand-colored, mounted and made into a most attractive card. One clever set was a hand-painted pumpkin in yellow with an inserted top which lifted up when the stem was pulled out. This concealed paper contained a riddle and a "fortune" for each person.

Other quaint cards or favors may be made out of raisins, peanuts, etc. A peanut doll may be quickly put together with the right-shaped nuts and toothpicks. A corncob doll favor is very pretty and novel. It is made by using the cob of a small ear of corn, inking a face at one end, and dressing it in crepe paper dress in such colors as pale green and yellow, etc., etc. Raisins make faces and such animal oddities as turtles. Use the large, flat raisin, place a whole clove for its head, the tip of the clove for its tail, and then use currants of different sizes to represent the turtle's offspring.
